Notre Dame

The University is a place where young minds are opened to the knowledge of all things: of God; of man; and of the world — and where young men are inspired by the wisdom to which this knowledge leads.

No organization is complete without its administrative branch. So, too, it is with the University of Notre Dame. Under the roof of gold can be found the President, who governs the present, the Foundation, which aids the future, and the Alumni Association which holds the key to the past.

Administration 18-25

The four Vice-Presidents assist Archbishop O'Hara C.S.C.—former President of the University—at the dedication of Stanford Hall.

As Dean of Students, Father Leonard Collins C.S.C. handles the disciplinary problems of each student, and also acts as Rector to the non-resident students.

All of the University's financial transactions pass through the hands of the University Cashier, Brother Albinus Butler C.S.C.

Much before a university can perform its academic functions it must consider its finances. The budget committee of a vast organization such as the University of Notre Dame must consider carefully all of its money matters.

A university functions only when there are students to inhabit its halls and fill its classrooms. Thus, many hours of reviewing files, past grades and the many other considerations constantly fill the time of the Director of Admissions, Rev. Richard Murphy, C.S.C.

The multiplicity of classes, teachers and students provide never ending problems for the Office of Academic Affairs. However, in the past two years the University has seen the affairs of this office and the manner in which the student deals with it greatly changed by the systems of Mr. Leo Corbaci, Assistant to the Vice-President.

The strength of any academic organization depends, a great deal, on the faculty. At the University of Notre Dame the students are fortunate to have the advantage of a growing and ever improving faculty. Also the recent changes made in the curricula have enhanced the possession of a degree from this University.

Academic 26-67

Activities 68-179

Activities always call to mind social life, and in truth they are best depicted by this, but this is only a partial picture. Clubs, student government, debates, publications and even events of drama should be considered in this wide topic for all present to the different students a means of activity for the time outside of class.

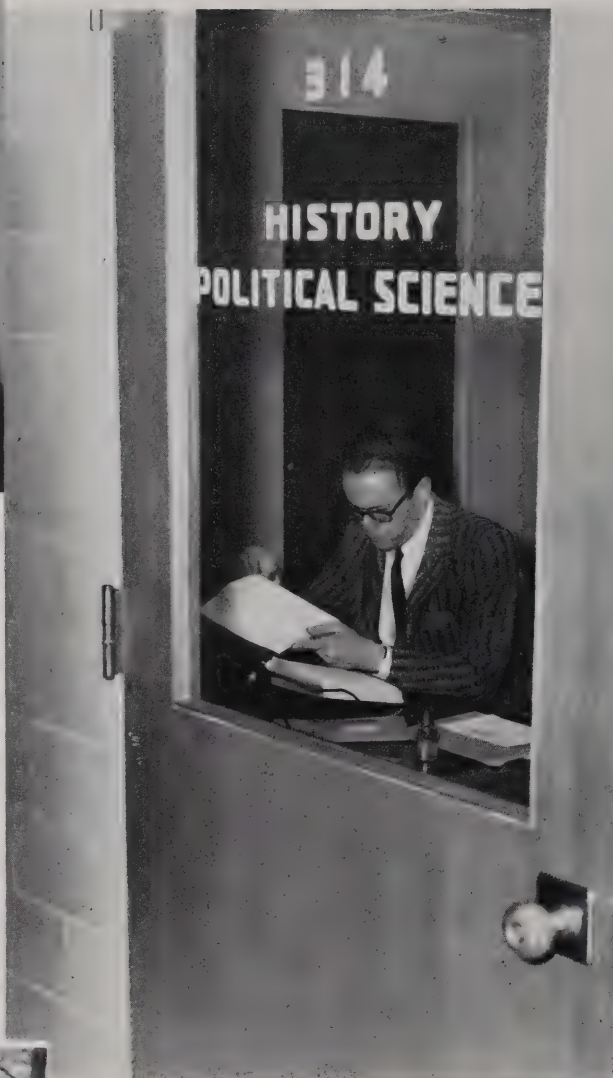

THE MARDI GRAS

The fine arts student develops his imagination and his talent for creating things of aesthetic value.

The student of the liberal arts improves his mind so that he may arrive at objective, universal truth.

The student of the professional arts broadens his talent for technological achievement.

Social life is not among the least of Notre Dame activities. Dances, mixers and parties dot the school year relieving the student, for a time, of his burden of academic life.

The greatest of activities at Notre Dame is the spiritual co-operation among the students when the University community finds the pressure of national prestige bearing its full brunt upon them.

Sports 180-241

This year more than ever the football team of the University of Notre Dame became the symbol of the famous Irish spirit. There is no doubt that the example of their winning excited the rest of the teams into producing the greatest winning year in the history of this University's sports activity.

FOOTBALL

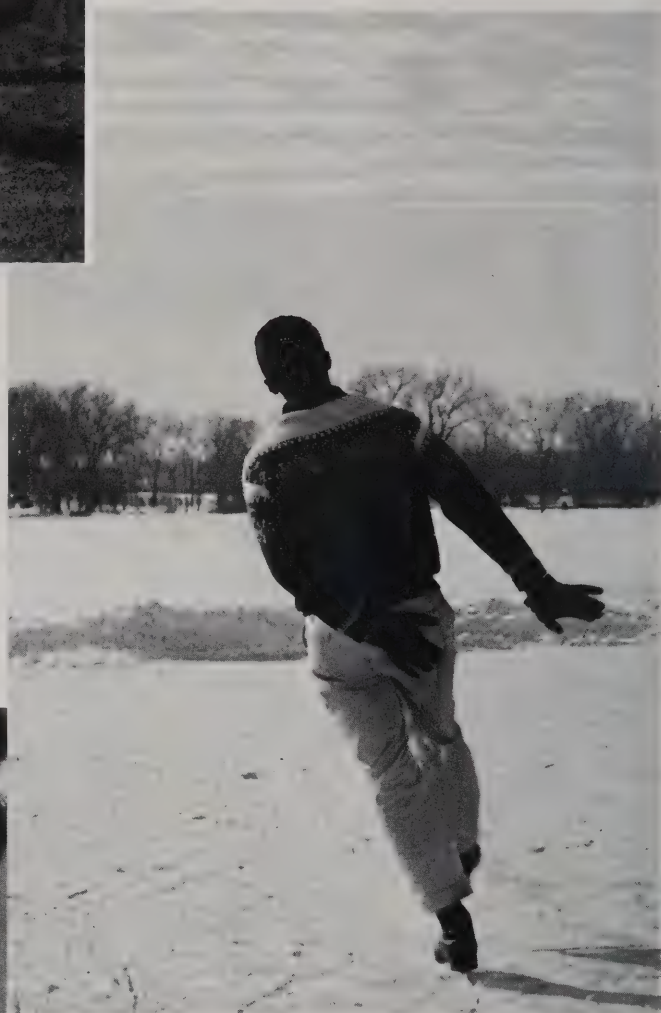

The fourth year to some and the sixth year to others, but to all it means the same. Called by most the senior year it has but one meaning—the end of a period has come. Now the student must go and on the strength of his own endeavor fill that place which has been waiting in society for his appearance.

Seniors 242-303

Every type of sports activity may be found at Notre Dame: the colorful and hard fought spectator sports are witnessed by many thousands each year.

One may also find a lone skater on the lake, engaging in sport solely for the enjoyment involved.

The weight-lifter is also found at Notre Dame. Though seldom publicized, he spends many hours developing his body for his own personal satisfaction or perhaps to obtain individual recognition.

As he nears the end of his college days, the senior makes his final preparations for future life: He prepares for marriage by asking God's blessing on his engagement.

He prepares to fulfill his military obligation by looking into the various service programs which are available to him.

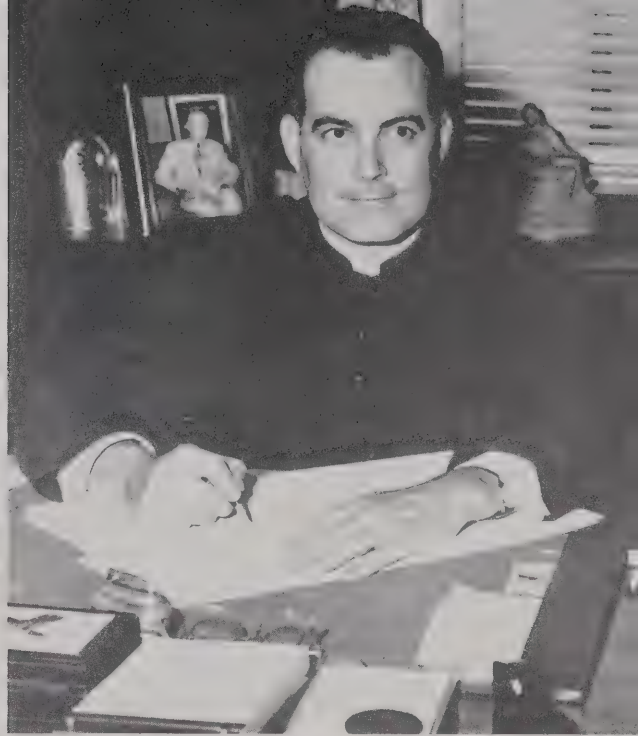

He prepares to enter the world of business by talking to the men who represent his prospective employers.

Education is not confined to the classroom but is also gained in living with people. Therein lies the value of a residential university such as the University of Notre Dame. Here the students learn the art of working and living with people in the best possible atmosphere — the residence hall.

Residences 304-357

DEDICATION

The Reverend Theodore M. Hesburgh, C.S.C., became president of the University of Notre Dame in 1952. During the six years under his guidance, Notre Dame has experienced one of the greatest periods of academic growth in her history. The academic development which Father Hesburgh has fostered is evidenced by the new curricula which have been established in the Notre Dame Law School, the College of Arts and Letters, and the College of Commerce.

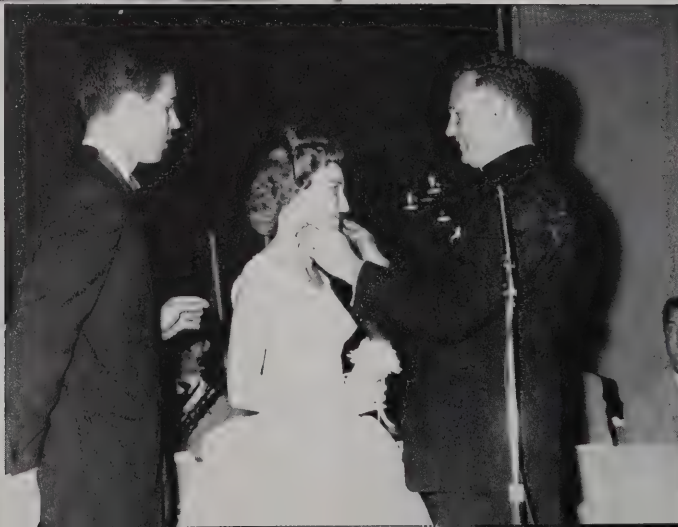

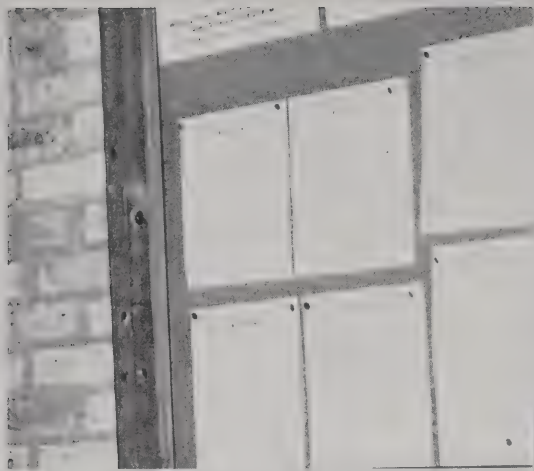

Seeing that the effectiveness of these curricular changes depended largely on the professors, Father Hesburgh has made a constant effort to enhance the status of the Notre Dame faculty. Since he was elevated to the presidency many world renowned scholars and masters have been added to the faculty and the present members have received substantially increased remuneration.

Father Hesburgh has always recognized the need for a university to exercise its influence on the outside world as well as the necessity for channelling its endeavors according to the needs of society. In accordance with this realization, Father Hesburgh has accepted both presidential and papal appointments, and holds a number of other influential posts outside the University. He is a member of the Civil Rights Commission and has recently been named permanent Vatican City representative to the International Atomic Energy Agency. The influence which Father Hesburgh will undoubtedly bring to bear on society in these controversial areas will be a great asset to Notre Dame, to Catholicism, and to mankind.

It has been the aim of Father Hesburgh to improve the intellectual quality of the Notre Dame student and to send him away well equipped to meet the demands of the world and to do the will of God. His achievements have only begun to show their effects. They will continue to improve Notre Dame men for years to come.

We think it fitting, then, to dedicate the 1958 DOME to Father Hesburgh, in sincere appreciation for what he has done for all of us and for Notre Dame.

CLASS CHAPLAINS

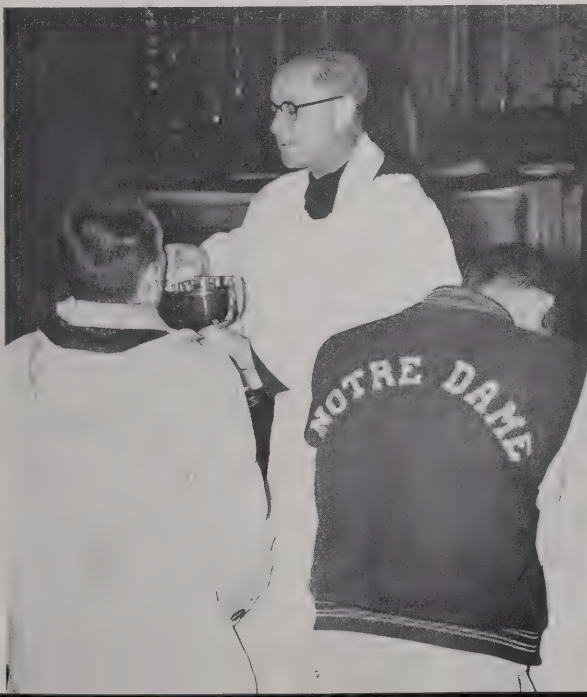

Rev. Charles M. Carey, C.S.C., Prefect of Religion and Senior Class Chaplain.

Freshmen wait their turn to talk things over with Father O'Neil.

Look's like Father Menard has convinced these Sophomores that the situation isn't as tough as it seemed.

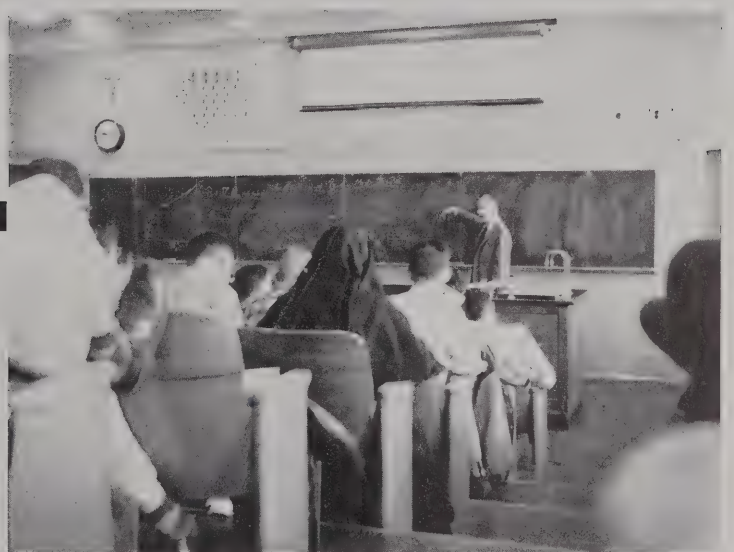

Father Barry distributes communion in Dillon Hall Chapel.

To the theme of, "If you have a problem, stop in and tell me about it; if not, stop in and tell me how you do it," the University chaplains are ever-willing to extend their services to the troubled student. Their services range from late Mass and Communion to consultation in the problems of everyday life. With offices located in Dillon, Sorin, Howard, and Cavanaugh Halls, these "Bellboys of God" are the most understanding men to be found on campus. It is with this thought in mind that students continually avail themselves to conferences in matters of spiritual, social, academic, and personal nature. It is also with this thought in mind that the chaplains may be said to be the most well known group of Priests at Notre Dame.

COLLEGE OF

ARTS & LETTERS

Rev. Charles Sheedy, C.S.C., Dean of the College of Arts and Letters.

Liberal education at Notre Dame provides the undergraduate with a marked opportunity to advance in spiritual, intellectual, and emotional maturity. Cognizance is made of the fact that the student is an individual. The educational effort is personal, with the center of attention the student and the developments that take place in him. In developing the spiritual and intellectual capacities of the individual, the liberal training begins by devoting the first two years to concentration in a general background of classical, medieval and modern thought. The skills of liberal education are exercised through the English language, foreign language, mathematical reasoning and logical thinking. The second two years extend toward a major subject in the student's chosen field of concentration. The major is supplemented with such courses as theology, philosophy, and the collegiate seminar, which is a discussion course in masterpieces of world literature in varied fields. The culmination of the student's personal work is his senior essay.

A question has often been raised: what can a liberal arts graduate do? That fact remains, that to be fitted for a specific walk of life is not the purpose of a liberal training. Rather, the graduate is on who can think, analyze, express himself, adapt himself to the rigors of establishing a career in whatever field of endeavor he may enter. It is with these faculties that the liberally educated graduate embarks upon the trials of making his life a success.

From its humble beginning in 1913 with an enrollment of six students, the Commerce school has grown with gigantic strides. Today, upwards of 1500 Notre Dame men are enrolled in its diverse programs. Over the course of the years, many changes have been wrought, striving to make the College of Commerce one of the leading undergraduate schools in the nation. By the addition of more highly specialized courses, both in business and the Arts, by the elimination of non-essential courses and by the prudent guidance of some of the country's most distinguished educators, this goal is steadily being achieved.

Recent innovations to further education in business study have been the management training programs and also the on-campus conferences for industry's leading executives.

It is an objective of the Commerce school to do more than merely prepare its undergraduates for a technical role in the business world. Its expressed intention is to inspire learning not only in the professional sphere of business but also in the varied spheres of culture. These areas of knowledge, when unified in the light of Christian philosophy, present a firm foundation upon which a young man may build in the years to follow. The graduate of the Notre Dame College of Commerce is fully prepared to assume the obligations of a Christian businessman.

ENGINEERING

Dean Karl E. Schoenherr

The courses in the Engineering School range from chemical and electrical engineering to architecture, with the multifarious engineering interests lying in between. Of these, several were the first of their nature to be offered by a Catholic University. To round out the basic core of technical training courses, religion, philosophy, and the humanities are found throughout the curriculum. Field and plant trips provide the student with a working knowledge of actual problems to be faced in industry. In addition they help to dramatize the relation between theory and practice.

The education of the engineering student at Notre Dame entails much more than the mere accumulation of a vast store of technical knowledge and practical skills. The programs offered within the various departments of the College of Engineering all have the same objective: the development of men who are ethically, technically, and culturally prepared for a professional career.

From his freshman year to his senior, the student engineer is confronted with courses that challenge his intellect and his ingenuity. Emphasis is placed on the responsibilities that he must shoulder upon graduation. The work of the engineer affects the lives of perhaps more people than that of any other profession. Consequently, his judgement and his standards must lie on an ethically sound basis. Moulding men of high caliber has been a prime function of Notre Dame for decades. And at no time has it been more needed than today.

COLLEGE OF SCIENCE

Dean Lawrence H. Baldinger

The year of 1957, with Russia's sputniks and worldwide concentration on missile and rocket development, brought a rude awakening to the American public. Shaken by the realization of the important necessity for top-notch scientists in this nuclear age, the nation turns a watchful eye to its Universities. It is to schools such as Notre Dame's College of Science that it looks, for within its classes and laboratories will be found the leading scientists of tomorrow.

To keep abreast of the ever increasing scientific developments of our day, the most up to date courses fill the curriculum of the science major. Special courses in physics and mathematics, once reserved for graduate students, are now standard for all undergraduates. Not only do physics and mathematics play a major role in the education of the science student, but also courses in chemistry, zoology, botany, and bacteriology. Persuance in these fields of study produces graduates qualified for further study in the medical profession.

Established in 1869, the Notre Dame College of Law is the oldest Catholic Law School in the United States. During the course of these years it has been recognized both by members of the profession and by students themselves that the College has made titanic strides toward becoming one of the nation's leading institutions of legal training.

In keeping with the tradition of allowing the graduate to practice in any jurisdiction in the country, the Notre Dame College of Law is designed along a national basis. For this reason, the school claims graduates as members of the bar in every state in the union.

GRADUATE SCHOOL

Little known, yet increasing in national stature is the Notre Dame Graduate School. Contained under this title are the four major divisions of Arts, Social Sciences, Engineering and Science. The Doctors degrees which are conferred from 14 departments, and the Masters from 26, are bestowed upon those who plan careers in college and university professorships and as industrial and governmental research technologists.

An important phase for any top ranking university, the Graduate School serves the dual purpose of attracting scholarly undergraduates to the University as well as furthering the education of those in post-graduate study.

With an eye cast towards the future, it is largely due to expansive programs in this College that some of the country's most outstanding instructors are seeking professorship in the various undergraduate schools of Notre Dame.

The Laboratory of Bacteriology, University of Notre Dame (LOBUND), founded in 1928 by Dr. James A. Reyniers, is dedicated to the scientific study of germ free animals. Within its three modern buildings, the Institute employs more than sixty research technicians in forty-five separate labs. The fact that germ free animals, by a process of isolation from contact with the germinal world, are bred and raised makes LOBUND a world center of bacteriology. Its principal activities are three: Microsurgery, the study of single cells; the study of germs in isolated safety cages; and the study of growth of germ free animals for further research in nutrition, animal ills, fundamental biology and medicine. Specific projects of the Institute concern practical application of scientific investigations to dental decay, radiation sickness, amoebic dysentery, shock and cancer. In 1955 the results of tests on radiation sickness were reported to the Atomic Energy Commission for consideration in reducing radioactive fallout from atomic bomb explosions.

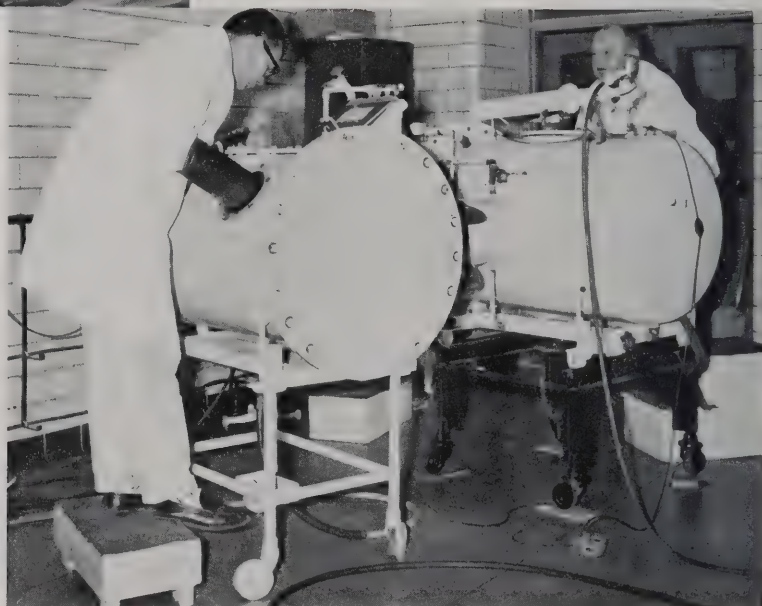

Father Doll and his assistant look over the results of tests which were made to see if any of their animals had contracted disease.

The latest equipment in germ free work are plastic chambers. Attached to the chambers are rubber gloves which are utilized when feeding the animals.

It is in chambers such as those pictured at the right that animals are born in a germ free environment.

In 1933, the Graduate School inaugurated special courses in the culture of the Middle Ages, from which stemmed a series of monographs, Publications in Mediaeval Studies. Out of this meager beginning grew the Mediaeval Institute, incorporated in the fall of 1952 as a special center of study and research within the Graduate School. Five years study of a general program substantiated by a major in philosophy, history, education, language or literature lead to degrees of Master and Doctor of Mediaeval Studies. Essential to stimulating renewed interest and appreciation of spiritual, artistic and intellectual values in Middle Age culture is the Institute's private library, a compilation of microfilmed manuscripts, photostats and old and new editions of source-literature, supplemented by specialized reports and periodicals. The Institute devotes its endeavors to two major fields. First, publishing, by which the students edit present editions and publish previously unprinted works; second, education, by which they are trained in methods and scientific acquisition of deeper knowledge of Mediaeval Times.

ARMY R.O.T.C.

Rev. Robert Woodward, C.S.C.
Director of Office for Military Affairs

The Army Reserve Officers Training Program functions by providing the student with essential military knowledge and by molding his character to become a trained leader of military men. The basic course, two years, consists of Army history, organization, weapons and map reading; the advanced, also two years, of leadership and instruction methods, tactics, logistics and military administration and law. In conjunction with theories obtained in the classroom, the student attends a six week summer camp, between his third and fourth years, at which he is given the opportunity to put his knowledge to practical use. Upon completion of his training, he is commissioned a 2nd lieutenant in one of the fifteen branches of the United States Army, consonant with his preference, academic major and requirements of the service.

AIR FORCE ROTC

Lieutenant Colonel Matthew H. Merkle, USAF

In this age of the race for space supremacy, it is imperative that the United States maintain a well-trained, well-coordinated, efficient corps of military officers. To re-enforce the recently established Air Force Academy in providing such men are the multifarious R.O.T.C. programs in the universities and colleges throughout the country. Here at Notre Dame, the A.F.R.O.T.C. boasts 400 students within its ranks. Begun in 1947, its chief aim has been to develop the character and ability required of a 2nd Lieutenant, allowing the student, upon completion of his four year course, to assume responsibilities of active duty. This year eighty percent of the graduating A.F.R.O.T.C. class will be assigned to duties as pilots and observers; the remainder will be employed in the Air Force's expansive research and developmental programs.

NAVY R.O.T.C.

Commanded by Captain L. T. Morse, U.S.N., the Naval branch of Notre Dame's R.O.T.C. units has an enrollment of slightly more than 400 students. This establishes it as one of the largest Naval R.O.T.C. organizations among the fifty-two college and university units in the United States. Originally formed in 1941 as a Navy Reserve Officer Training Corps, it was converted into a Midshipman's School under wartime V-12 program. In 1947 it reverted to its present status as an R.O.T.C. unit. Make-up of the corps is of two types: Regulars, selected on a nationwide basis and provided with governmental subsidy; and Contracts, selected locally from University students, not afforded a federal grant. The prime objective of the organization is to provide additional Regular career officers, supplementary to the United States Naval Academy, for duty in either the United States Navy or Marine Corps.

NOTRE DAME MEN OF THE YEAR

Jerry Brady

The 33rd Annual Dome Award, traditionally the highest student award at the University, is awarded on the basis of character and ability as well as academic excellence and extra-curricular activities.

An all-junior board, representing the most prominent campus organizations, with the Editor of the Dome presiding as chairman, reviewed forty-one students eligible for the award. The men chosen were those who most nearly exemplified the true Christian Gentleman and the Notre Dame man.

The men pictured on these pages are to be congratulated for their contribution to their University and the Notre Dame way of life.

To these men go the warmest congratulations of the Editors of the 1958 Dome.

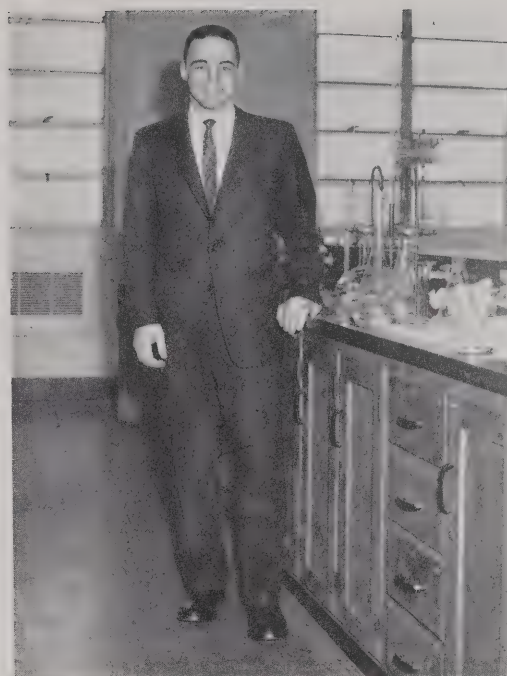

Undoubtedly the most difficult position for an undergraduate is that of official student representative of the University. Jerry Brady assumed this role when he was elected Student Body President. Jerry truly had the qualities to fill this position, which requires a man of outstanding character. In his Sophomore year, he represented his class in student government as Sophomore Class President. He returned to the Senate the following year as secretary and subsequently was elected President. Jerry, a Communication Arts major, was able to maintain a Dean's List average while serving his fellow student in these government positions. His other extra-curricular activities include debate and radio work on WSND. After graduating with honors, Jerry plans to enter Law School.

John Hirschfeld

The Blue Circle Honor Society serves as the "right arm" of the University. Thus, an outstanding man must be chosen to lead this organization, and the man who held the position of chairman in 1958, John Hirschfeld, is very outstanding. John, a history major from Champaign, Illinois, has worked in this group for three years. But during this time John has not let his academic work slide to the side. He will graduate maxima cum laude and deliver the salutatorian's address to the graduates and their friends. For three years John was an outstanding speaker on the debate team. This year he was the brigade commander of the Army ROTC unit, having responsibility for some eight hundred prospective soldiers. All these qualifications gave John Hirschfeld a well-deserved place in Who's Who in Colleges and Universities.

Notre Dame's pre-medical studies are geared toward "separating the men from the boys." In this respect, John Kennedy is one of the greatest of men. John entered Notre Dame four years ago and since that time has maintained the highest average in the class of 1958. He graduates maxima cum laude in June after he has addressed his fellow graduates as valedictorian of the class. He intends to enter the Georgetown University Medical School on a scholarship in September. Kennedy's other activities include two years on the Irish football squad. Though never playing on the stadium turf, he spent many long hours of scrimmage on the practice field. John was also a member of the Student Senate, having held the office of Science representative. These achievements merited John a place in Who's Who in American Universities and Colleges in 1958.

John Kennedy

1958 DOME AWARDS

One of the most deserving men ever to receive this highest award of the university is John McCarthy. John is best known to the student body as co-captain and a three year letter-winner on the varsity basketball team. He became a member of the exclusive "1000 point" club this year, ranking among the top ten in scoring in Notre Dame's long basketball history. Though he spent many hours on the practice court, John has maintained a cum laude average in his scholastic endeavors as a philosophy major. "Mac" has participated as a member of the Blue Circle Honor Society for three years and served as vice-chairman of the organization as a Senior. He is an extremely cordial individual, never bearing a frown on his face, always with a "hello" for his friends. A great athlete, a true friend, and Notre Dame man—John McCarthy.

A special honor is indeed due to those members of a University who through special effort of their own, best represent their University through outstanding scholarship, extra-curricular activity and leadership. Election to the National Intercollegiate Honor Society—Who's Who is just such an honor. A selection committee comprised of Juniors selected by the various deans, department heads, and campus organization presidents is faced with the task of selecting these men for the National Judging Board's approval. The Junior committee selects these men from nominations submitted to them by the student body. Each application is voted on by every member of the Junior committee and the men with the highest total number of votes are submitted to National Judging Board for final selection. Plaques commemorating their enrollment in the National Society are given to each member at a dinner held in the spring, in their honor.

Victory dances, buses to the train stations and St. Mary's College on Saturday nights, Mardi Gras, Student Leadership Training Program; these plus the great majority of social, academic, and religious events are the result of the work of the Notre Dame Student Government.

The Student Senate is made up of twenty-one men elected from the various halls and colleges, three class Presidents, four "stay senators," and four officers. These thirty-two men work under the advisorship of Rev. James Norton, CSC.

This year the Senate, under the leadership of Jerry Brady, Student Body President, voted a new award to the Professor of the Year and set up a Student Government Scholarship fund with the profit from the Mardi Gras. It sponsored a conference of the National Confederation of Catholic College Students and the Student Union Conference.

Through the Spiritual Commission an effort was made to have the Little Office of the Paters for the appropriate hour said before each class. The Physical Facilities Commission ran a contest and selected "Time-out" as a name for the new room in the Huddle. The Public Relations Commission published a students activity booklet for the freshmen. The "Four Freshman" were brought to campus for a concert through the effort of the Social Commission.

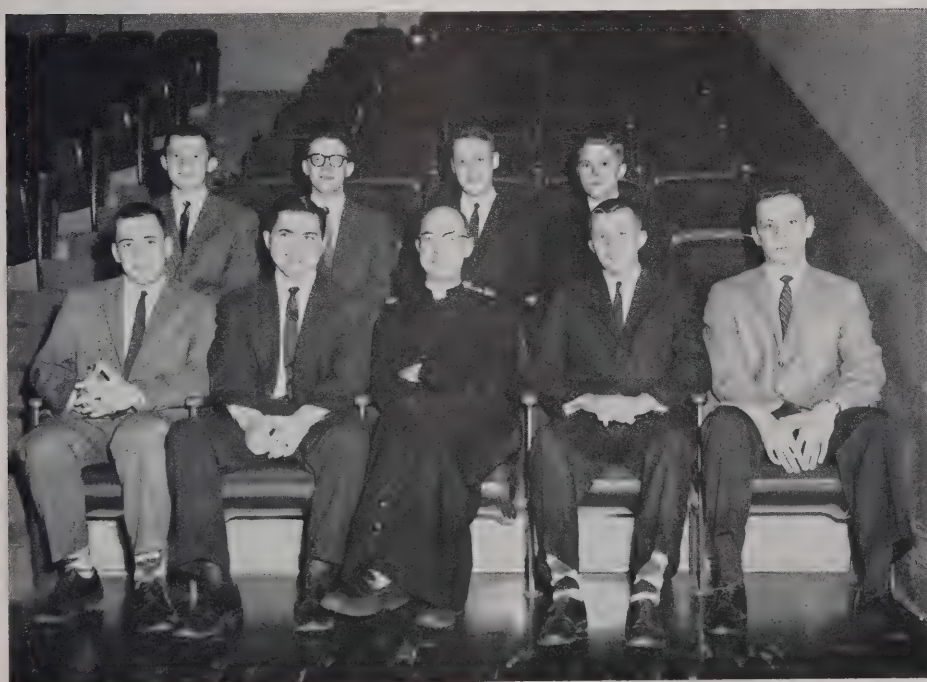

The Student Government throughout the year worked to improve the social, academic, athletic and religious life of the student, and this after all, is its purpose.

BLUE CIRCLE

Where can I pick up my trunk? How do I get to Washington Hall? — this is the September Freshman asking questions during Orientation week. And the ones who answer these and other queries are the members of the Blue Circle who conduct the Freshman Orientation as one of their services to Notre Dame.

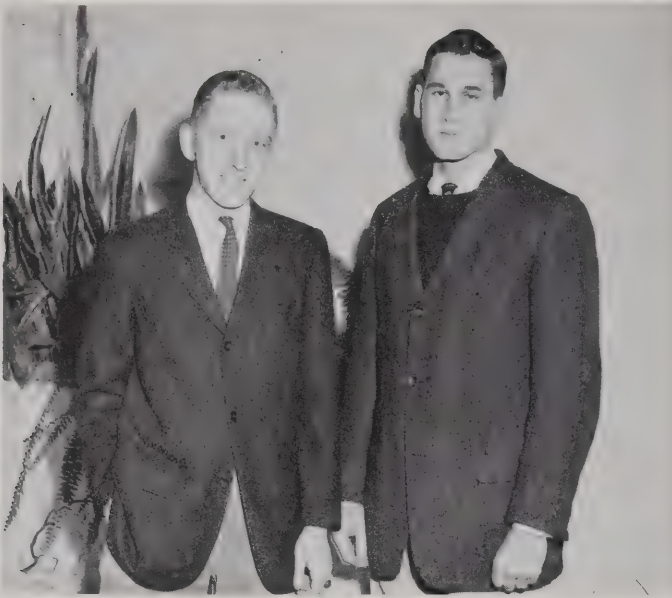

The Blue Circle also organizes the Student Football Trip and conducts campus tours for visitors. The society handles the football pep rallies with enough "oom-pha-pha" and cheer to inject the team and students with winning energy. With political efficiency the organization runs the elections for Student Senate and the elections of private organizations on the campus.

The Blue Circle which was founded in 1923 originally to sponsor pep rallies, now directs its many endeavors toward the betterment of the university, of student life at the university, and of the Blue Circle itself. To better the university, the Blue Circle seeks to raise the cultural and intellectual level by its concert and lecture series. To better the student life, the society conducts advisory programs for underclassmen. To advance the students' physical welfare, the society last year secured the distribution of the Salk anti-polio vaccine, and this year, the Asiatic flu vaccine. Through its various committees, the Blue Circle has improved conditions in the library and cafeteria.

STUDENT COURT

As the judicial arm of Student Government, the Student Activities Court is vested with jurisdiction over all disputes which arise under the Student Senate Constitution, the legislation passed by the Senate, and the regulations which are set up by the executive commissions.

The executive branch of Student Government is represented in court by a Judicial Commissioner, who is appointed by the student body president. The Court itself is composed of a chief justice, four associate justices, and a court clerk, all of whom are appointed by the student body president.

Cases brought before the Student Activities Court may be instituted by representatives of the Administration, Student Government Commissioners, or any student of the University.

Regular court procedure is followed, including the appointing of attorneys and counselors, the issuing of summons and subpoenas, and the submission of briefs. Any student in good standing with the University may participate in court action as an attorney or counsel.

SENIOR OFFICERS

Unity was the most striking accomplishment of the Class of '59 in its Junior Year. In all the activities and projects of the year, the class worked as one. Class newsletters and class meetings also aided in the attainment of unity.

The Junior Class Party, after the Holy Cross basketball game, was a tremendous success. Employing the American Bandstand format, it presented something fresh, novel, and uniquely informal in the way of campus social affairs. The Junior-Parents-Son Weekend in March was the most successful in the weekend's brief history with more parents coming to the campus and enjoying themselves than ever in the past. More men of the Class of '59 attended the Junior Prom in early May than that of any class in University history to round out an enjoyable social calendar.

In the spiritual activity the Class solidly supported Junior Class Help Week, aiding unfortunate families and groups in the South Bend area, while performing a most commendable practical act of Charity.

And Senior Year began

Freshmen Orientation: 180 Seniors arrived one day early to welcome the Freshmen.

Pigskin Preview: Seniors form cheering section at Purdue . . . gave the team initial push toward great comeback. Pivonka and Maloney organize excellent Senior Trip to Michigan State.

The Sophomore class has been very successful throughout the year in initiating, organizing, and administrating class activities. The most successful of these activities was the Sophomore Cotillion.

This year's Sophomores said the rosary together at the Grotto, participated in class mixers and parties, and played in bridge, bowling, and handball tournaments.

One of the most unique functions that the class participated in was the Sophomore Spring Dance which was held in late April. The dance, designed to fill the nineteen month gap between the Sophomore Cotillion and the Junior Prom, was held for the first time this year.

The members of the class of '60 will remember their Sophomore year as a banner year in their advancement towards academic excellent, social grace, and religious fervor.

The secretary is Dave Offutt, and the treasurer is John Keegan.

In the past year this council has promoted activities which pertain to the Freshman Class such as, The Freshman Class Party; The Freshman Formal; and The Freshman Class Newsletter. These Freshman Presidents and Senators have worked closely with the Presidents and Senators of the other halls on campus in coordinating such things as the sale of the Mardi Gras tickets, and the adoration to Our Lady of Lourdes on the centennial anniversary of her appearance.

Fred Holzl, Manager, Bob Daley and Tom Carroll, the two assistants.

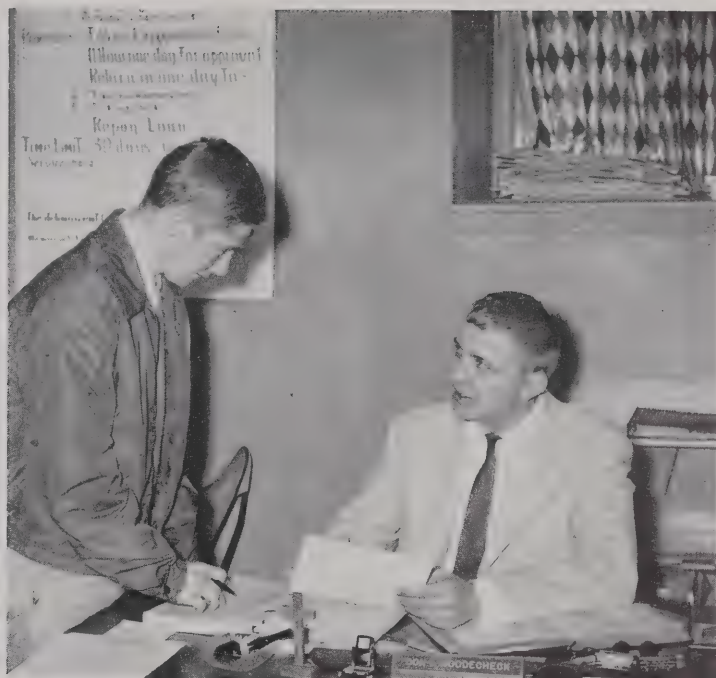

STUDENT CENTER

Directly to the left inside the front door of the Student Center is the office of one who probably knows more about the Student Center than anyone else—the Student Center manager. Working a 25-hour week, the manager does more than just clean up the Main Lounge and adjust TV sets. He is an administrator who regulates the use of rooms in the Center by various clubs for their functions. He is a businessman who constantly comes in contact with students, members of the administration, and downtown businessmen.

The manager, in connection with any function held in the Student Center, has charge of ordering refreshments. Maintaining good financial records is another responsibility of the manager. Assisting the manager in his work are two subordinate managers and a staff of housekeepers and janitors, all of whom succeed in making the Student Center a smoothly-run Social Center.

STUDENT LOAN REPRESENTATIVE

SENATE OFFICE

Bill Mapother—The Senate Recording Secretary. One of the most important men at any Senate meeting; Bill can be seen writing throughout most of the session. He records as much as possible and prepares the minutes for the next meeting.

EARLY CHRISTIAN ART

Fifth Century Art

John Walker, Director, National Art Gallery

An interested observer

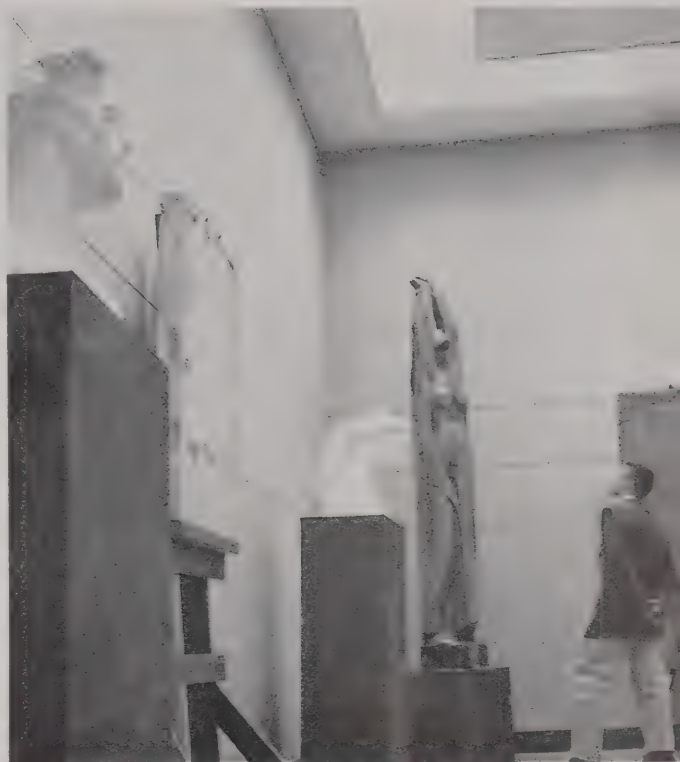

Objects d'art from some of the foremost museums and collections in the country were exhibited at the College of Arts and Letters' annual Festival of Arts. The theme of this year's October art event was "Early Christian Art."

The exhibition included more than one hundred and twenty pieces of art of the early Christian era, obtained this summer by the Rev. Anthony Lauck, C.S.C., of the University's Art Department. From New York's Metropolitan Museum of Art were fourth-to-fifth century Coptic tapestries; from Baltimore's Walters Art Gallery, Byzantine silver creations. The Art Institute of Chicago lent French copper work of the 13th century. Private collections were represented by Syrian glassware, marble sculpture, and bronze statuettes.

The exhibition was not the only high point of this year's Festival. In addition to the art display, the Festival committee arranged to have several noted scholars in the field of art deliver lectures during the course of the week. Mr. John Walker, Director, National Art Gallery, Washington, spoke on "Christian Art in the National Gallery." Mr. Wilbur Peat, Director, Herron Art Institute, Indianapolis, spoke on "The Arts of the Early Church."

This year's Festival was one of great interest and importance to the student body, since it had the dual value of being a fine artistic collection as well as being an opportunity to see some concrete aspects of the early Church through its art.

SENIOR RETREAT

Annually, the Senior Class of Notre Dame has a retreat at Sacred Heart Church. This year February 20, 21 and 22 were set aside as the special days for personal meditation. The approximate 1000 men of the class returned to Sacred Heart three times a day for morning, afternoon, and evening sessions. The Reverend Charles Harris, C.S.C., rector of Howard Hall, gave a thought provoking and memorable retreat for the fourth year men. Traditionally, the seniors have held a retreat during their final semester at Notre Dame. Its moral and spiritual benefits have proven to be more than worth the comparatively small amount of time taken.

Retreat Master, Rev. Charles Harris, C.S.C.

Robert F. Kennedy

PATRIOT OF THE YEAR

Over one hundred years ago, Father Edward Sorin felt there was a need for Notre Dame men to pay tribute to their country. He began what has today become one of the University's oldest traditions, the Washington Day Exercises.

The recipient of the Fifth Annual Patriotism Award and the principal speaker for the one hundred and ninth Washington Day Exercises was a distinguished member of a great American family, Robert F. Kennedy, currently the Chief Counsel for the Senate Committee investigating improper activities in the field of labor and management.

Emblematic of the Patriotism Award, a plaque and scroll was presented to Mr. Kennedy, honoring him as "an outstanding patriot who exemplifies the American ideals of justice, of personal integrity and of service to country."

MARRIAGE INSTITUTE

February 19th marked the opening of the 1958 Marriage Institute, which was open to all Seniors and any other student contemplating marriage. Rev. Theodore M. Hesburgh, C.S.C., gave the opening lecture, talking on "Selection of the Marriage Partner." His lecture was followed by a question and answer period and a coffee hour in the Student Center where any questions could be asked personally.

After Father Hesburgh's talk there were five lectures concerned with married life. The second lecture, February 26th, was given by Dr. and Mrs. L. J. Maino who talked on "The Psychology of the Male and Female in Marriage." The next Wednesday, The Rev. A. L. Meloche spoke on "The Image of the Trinity in Sanctity, Sanity and Sex."

On March 12, Dr. Louis B. Leone gave "The Doctor's Viewpoint," and Mr. and Mrs. Art Schaefer spoke on "Love in Marriage" on March 19th. Mr. and Mrs. Frank O'Dowd concluded the series on March 26th with a talk on "Success in Marriage."

FOUNDATION WEEK

This year's annual student drive for the Notre Dame Foundation fund, under the leadership of Bob Toland, was one of the most successful since the beginning of this collection in 1955. Over 99.5% of the students here under the "Dome" contributed to this worthy cause. The freshman halls led the participation with 100%.

Two-thirds of this year's total collection of the Notre Dame Foundation will go to "internal growth" with the remaining one-third going for new buildings and additions to current structures on campus.

A raise of faculty salaries is planned also in the near future. A new field-house and auditorium is being looked forward to. A modern library is in the process of being accomplished and a student aid increase is in the program.

Higher faculty salaries, modern buildings and increased student aid are all brought about by the work of the Notre Dame Foundation, under the leadership of the Rev. John J. Cavanaugh, C.S.C.

PARENTS'

The weekend of March 15th and 16th was the occasion for the sixth Junior Class Parents' Weekend at the University. The Weekend's purpose was to afford our parents a view of our daily campus life in all three significant and related phases—Spiritual, Academic, and Social.

Saturday's agenda was crammed with activity. There were tours of the campus, faculty receptions, and the showing of the latest Alumni movie on student life. Dinner that night was served in the New Dining Hall with Father Hesburgh present and the Glee Club providing some after dinner entertainment. This was followed by an open house in the Student Center.

A Sunday morning 9 o'clock High Mass in Sacred Heart Church concluded the planned schedule. This allowed sufficient time for some un-hurried parent-son chats before the parents had to leave for home again, carrying with themselves a better idea of Notre Dame student life and where the money goes.

ENGINEERING OPEN HOUSE

The Ford Display—The La Galaxie.

The Chevrolet Display—featuring a cut-down model of one of their latest cars.

The seventh annual Engineering Open House was held on April 25, 26, and 27. "Explorama" was the theme of the 1958 exposition which included departmental displays, an auto show, an air show, a professional engineering demonstration, and the traditional chariot race. Under the chairmanship of Bob Norris, the Open House committee prepared a series of events and displays that exemplified the engineering profession in searching out new techniques and products for the use of man.

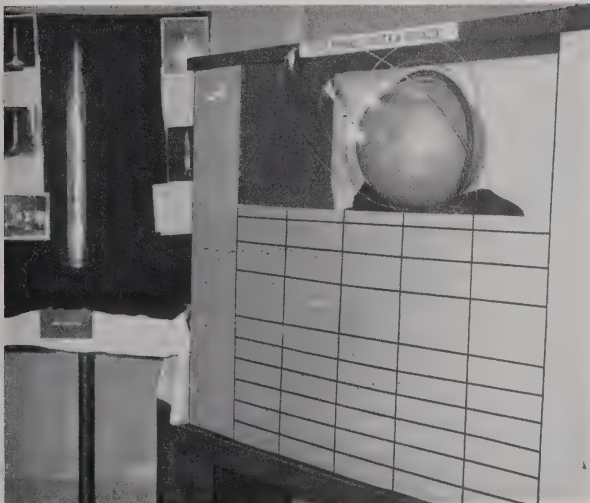

The Auto Show, which was in progress in the Drill Hall on each of the Open House dates, included "Detroit Dream Cars" as well as a line of foreign and domestic sports cars. On Saturday Mr. Donald Wright of Indiana Bell Telephone spoke on "Our National Defense." Each department vied for the coveted trophy in the Chariot Race that followed. The Air Show, held on both Saturday and Sunday afternoon, featured light aircraft, stunt flying, and a demonstration of "Search and Rescue."

The departmental exhibits this year encompassed a greater part of the engineering education than ever before. Both student-constructed and industrial demonstrations were employed. For the first time the Heat Power Lab of the Mechanical Engineering Department was open to the public. In addition there were displays on artificial satellites, electronic cooking and washing, reactor materials, and smoke precipitation.

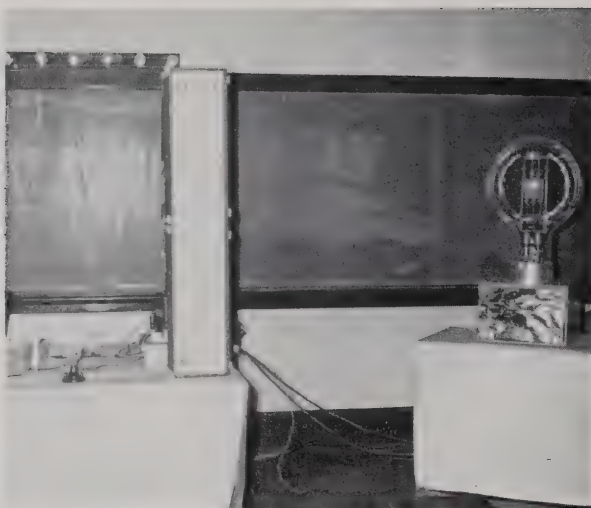

The Electrical Engineering Department was awarded honors for the best departmental display.

The Aeronautical Engineering display was devoted to missiles and satellites.

MOOT COURT

The Honorable Robert Grant, Associate Justice Brennan, and Chief Judge Briggs listen very attentively to each counsel.

Hear ye! Hear ye! The Eighth Annual Moot Court Competition will come to order. This was heard by a large audience in the Engineering Auditorium on November 7, 1957. The Court established in 1950, sponsors a competition in appellate advocacy which is open to all second year students. The final contestants are selected from previous competition and this year they were the survivors of 32 entries. The student winners are entitled to take part in the National Moot Court Competition, the Dean's award, and cash prizes amounting to $150.

The Court which heard this year's argument was headed by the Honorable William J. Brennan Jr., Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States. He was assisted by the Honorable John Briggs, Jr., Chief Judge of the United States Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit, and the Honorable Robert A. Grant of the United States District Court for the Northern District of Indiana.

The winners of this year's competition were John Murry and Raymond Tam, the council for the petitioners.

One of the four finalists in his last debate.

The Student Center was the scene on Friday and Saturday, March 7 and 8, of Notre Dame's sixth annual National Invitational Debate Tournament. Thirty top teams debated three times on the affirmative and three on the negative of the question "whether the requirement of membership in a labor organization as a condition of employment should be illegal." The Notre Dame tourney had the distinction of being one of the few tournaments in the country in 1957-58 at which all four service academies were represented: Army, Navy, Air Force, and Merchant Marine.

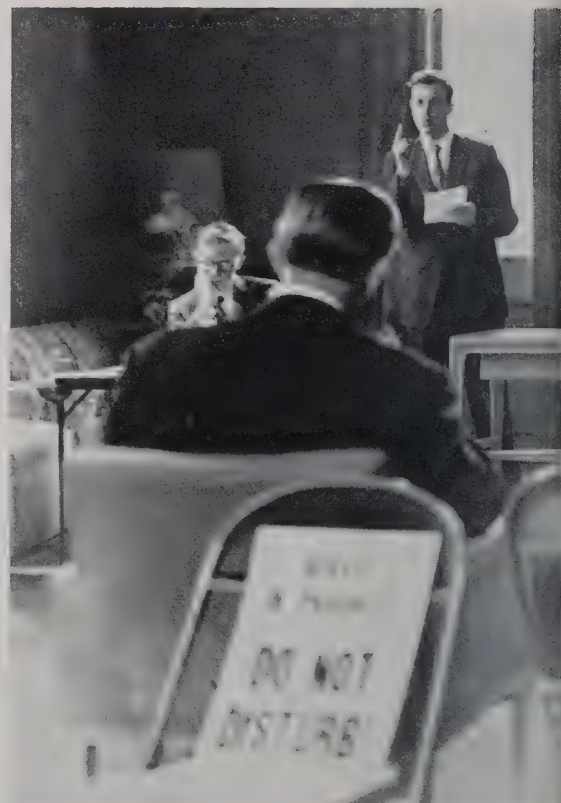

Augustana College, 1957 National Debate Champions, preserved their prestige by capturing the Tournament by defeating Marquette University in the final round before 300 in the Engineering Auditorium. Jack Martzell, Notre Dame's leading debater, provided some solace for the Irish, however, by capturing the first place speaker's trophy. Notre Dame's two man team placed sixth in the final Tournament standings.

NO TIME FOR SERGEANTS

Private Will Stockdal in trouble again!

Wednesday evening October 16th, the Student Government presented the Maurice Evans' Production of "No Time For Sergeants." Evans' New York company came here following its record-breaking run of two years on Broadway. The cast included such well known stars as Charles Hohman as Private Will Stockdal, Rex Everhart as Sergeant King, Tucker Ashworth as Ben Whitledge, and J. Robert Victor as co-pilot Lieutenant Gardella.

The play progressed in a humorous vein, with one incident after another, as Will succeeds in making military life, for him at least, one big unwitting joke.

The play did not attempt to either depress or inspire, but merely entertained, and in doing so it achieved a freshness and presented an experience to the audience which was highly rewarding.

PRELUDE . . .

First big problem for a dance committee—ticket sales—which provide the working capital.

Precise measurements are necessary before actual construction of the decorations can begin.

Small props are painted well in advance so that there will be plenty of time for other problems.

Experienced student carpenters are in demand to add a professional touch to the decor.

TO THE DANCE

As the first note of music flows across the ballroom floor, as couples stream into the building amidst these sounds, the dance begins—for them. For others, these first moments of music, dancing, and laughter bring a climax to a tremendous task. For these are the men behind the scenes, the construction engineers of a dance. These are the ticket sellers, the carpenters, the business managers, the painters, the real workers. They arrange for the dance band, the flowers, the favors, all the details which make a dance such an enjoyable evening. Months before the big night, planning sessions begin the long chain of events which are climaxed the night of the dance. For these men a dance presents a challenge to their ingenuity and originality. They continually strive towards better dances so that hundreds of couples may have a real evening to remember.

Some decorations are not painted until they are assembled in the building.

Large crews of workers are needed to haul heavier decorations into the ballroom.

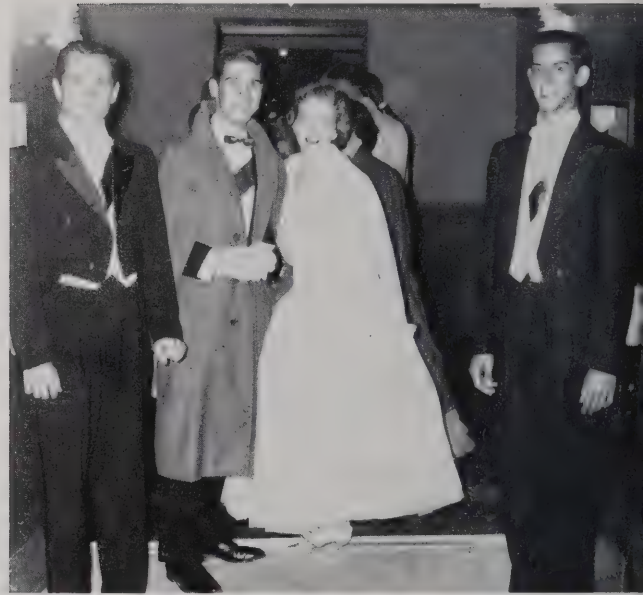

Last few hours before the ballroom opens are often spent on last minute details.

EMBASSY WALTZ

... the arts and letters ball

The evening—October 4th; the band—Bobby Davidson & Co.; the occasion—Arts and Letters Ball, “Embassy Waltz.” Thus, the stage was set for the inauguration of the 1957 social season. La Fortune Student Center took on an international air, as student diplomats and their ladies received royal greetings from formally attired doormen. While couples entered the Rathskeller, the Davidson sound flowed from the ballroom above. As they moved onto the dance floor, cymbals crashed, horns blared, and the guests put aside their diplomatic restraint to more fully enjoy the captivating rhythm.

Intermission brought pianist Eddie Thomas to the bandstand. The ballroom floor became a picnic ground for music lovers who gathered 'round to listen and sing melodies old and new.

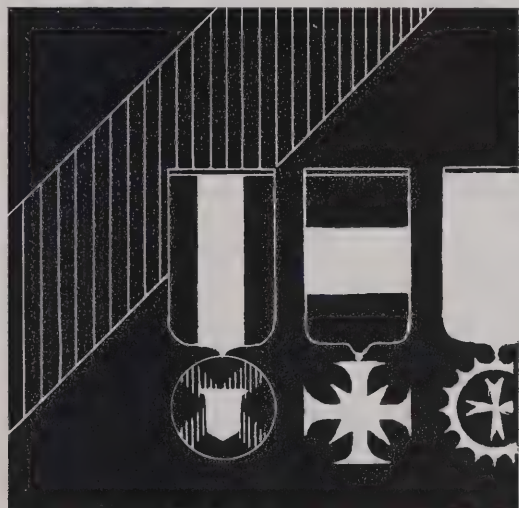

At midnight Rev. Edmund P. Joyce, C.S.C., arrived with a diamond studded crown, the honors being conferred upon the queen shortly thereafter.

Suellen Haley and Denny D'Alelio of the Air Force, Jacque Meier and Jim Behme of the Navy, and Peggy Heincan and Hugh Murphy of the Army, Queens and Kings of the Military Ball.

The evening of October 18th saw three hundred cadets and their dates approaching the fortified La Fortune Student Center for the annual Military Ball. Gray stone facades had been raised, while two towers, protecting the entrance of the fortress, lent an atmosphere of medieval adventure to the cold autumn night.

The commanding officers of the three military branches signaled "at ease" as the future officers entered. For the second successive year, Dick Carleton's orchestra graced the ball with his music, to which the cadets swept their ladies around the ballroom.

At midnight the officers of the day ordered a halt in proceedings to decorate the queens of land, sea, and air with respective military honors.

At the stroke of one A.M. taps were sounded; the happy couples then drifted into the early morning air.

Highlights of the social season this year were the many class and college balls. The months of autumn and spring saw young ladies flock to the campus for these dances. But the long winter nights did not send the Notre Dame man into hibernation. For companionship and relaxation from the rigor of studies, the solution was found in the Saturday Night Date.

INDIAN SUMMER

. . . the science ball

The twenty-fifth night of October saw a bright harvest moon shining on the La Fortune Student Center. Within the building 250 couples were dancing to the captivating music of Sol "Tiny" Hicks and his Orchestra. The occasion for the festivities was the 1957 Science Ball, "Indian Summer."

From early evening until the stroke of midnight couples drifted amid decorations of orange and black. Autumn leaves, cornstalks and pumpkins highlighted the scene. At the bewitching hour Rev. James E. Norton, C.S.C., conferred the honors by crowning Miss Mary Ann Tinsley queen of the ball. Dance chairman Frank Pugliese then received the traditional reward from her highness.

As "Indian Summer" drew to a close, the couples retreated from the spell of the dreamy music and sauntered out under the shining October moon.

ETERNAL ROME

... the sophomore cotillion

Fr. Hesburgh decorates the lovely head of Miss Linda Lambur with the Cotillion crown.

Came November 1st, and the splendor of ancient Rome was recreated in the La Fortune Student Center. In was Friday, the night of "Eternal Rome," the night of the Sophomore Cotillion. Simulated champagne flowed freely as the revelers danced under the purple, gold, and white banners of the imperial city. Russ Carlyle's orchestra journeyed to the empire of gladiators, providing music to please the gods.

Five hundred formally dressed Sophomores and their dates entered the Center between pillars decorated with olive branches and gold lashings. Beyond the pillars rose a Roman temple, bathed in white light, while on the second floor an orchard of hanging vines and grapes enclosed the dancing throng.

The ecstasy of ancient history was interrupted momentarily as Rev. Theodore M. Hesburgh, C.S.C., introduced the queen to all citizens.

One A.M. was proclaimed, and the splendor of Rome faded once more into the past; the ball goes into the cool morning darkness.

LIVING-ROOM

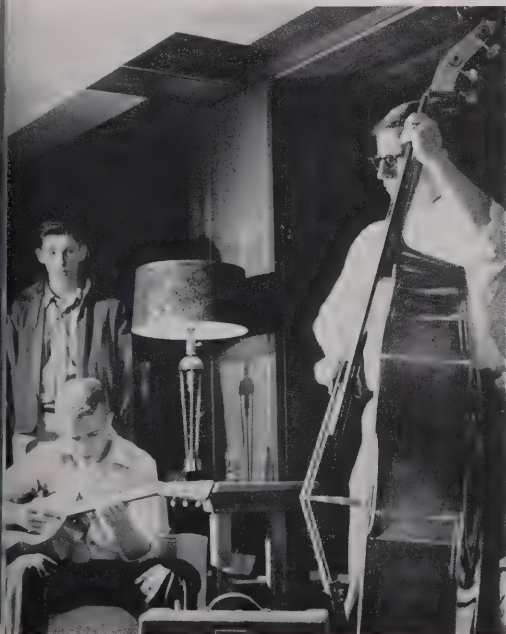

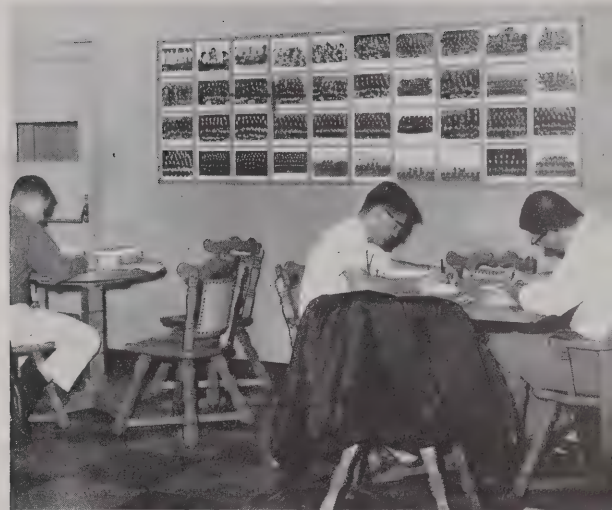

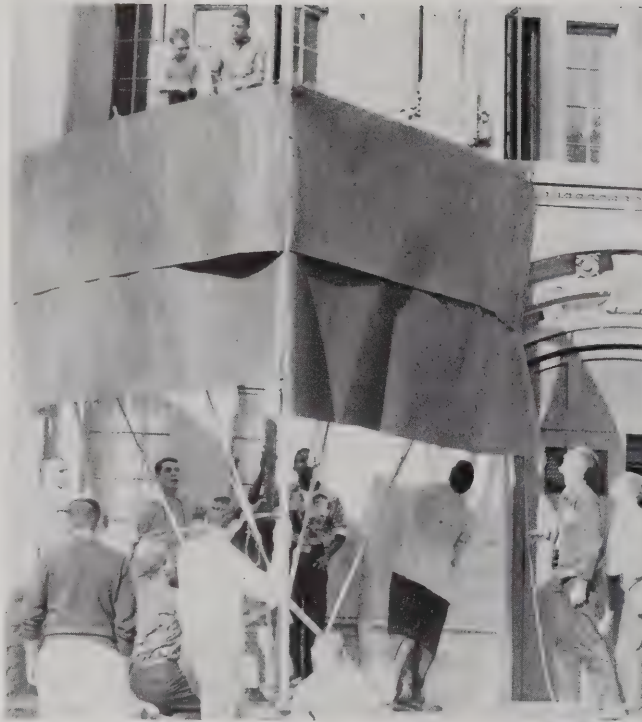

OF THE UNIVERSITY

The La Fortune Student Center. We call it the living-room of the University. Here, in the afternoon, we find warmth and congeniality around a TV set or a bridge table. It is a place where we may study and read in quiet. For relaxation from the books we can join a few friends for a game of pool or ping-pong. On Sundays we can listen or "sit in" on the weekly jam session in the Rathskellar. Almost every night we meet to have a snack or a cup of coffee under the colorful mural in the "Time Out" room of the Huddle. Here, in the closing hours of the day, we discuss campus politics, plans for the coming holidays, or that blind date last weekend.

Our parents and friends like the clean lines of the Center, the coziness of the Rathskellar, the modern furniture of the Fiesta Lounge. And we are very proud to be able to entertain them there.

On weekends, in the evening, we see the Center humming with excitement. Its ballrooms fill with dark suits and glistening gowns. Orchestras envelop the building with haunting notes while we dance under the soft lights of the main ballroom.

WEEKEND

What makes a homecoming weekend? Is it the student hanging precariously by one foot from the roof of Lyons hall as he helps erect the hall's decorations? Possibly it's that special effort made by the Notre Dame band as it parades onto the football field between halves of the big game. Maybe it's the return of the alumni to their former home, where they meet old classmates, reminisce about dawn patrols and dining hall food, and visit sub-Sorin to see how it looks twenty years after. Or could it be the shrill cries echoing through the teeming fieldhouse at the Friday night pep rally? Some think it's the pre-game party on Sorin's front steps; others believe it's the thousands pouring into the great oval, making predictions and talking of injuries.

What makes this one weekend of the Notre Dame year so wonderful is a combination of these varied events. For a few hours students forget about classwork, visitors about business problems, faculty about tests and deficiencies. Some intangible bond develops; they become the twelfth man on the gridiron, not merely viewing but actually living the pigskin battle. This is a Notre Dame Homecoming Weekend.

NIGHT IN HAWAII

. . . the lawyers' ball

Two-hundred law students and their dates, adorned with Hawaiian orchids, held court at the South Bend Country Club one cold Friday, the first of November. It was a "Night in Hawaii," the annual Notre Dame Law Ball.

An early winter frost had already settled upon the countryside. Within the club, however, the theme of the dance lent an atmosphere of white sands, palm trees, and a warm Hawaiian sun. Ken Morris and his orchestra entertained the tropical vacationers for the third consecutive year.

John Marchal, president of the Student Law Association, presided. In accordance with the law of the land, Miss Carole Wrona, of Dearborn, Michigan, was judged queen of the ball. The verdict went uncontested, as the newly crowned Hawaiian queen danced off with her escort, Frank Prebenda. Frank, as chairman of the Law Committee, took charge of preparations for the dance.

At one A.M., court was adjourned, in expectation of the Notre Dame-Navy battle that afternoon.

VICTORY

The crowded dance floor; the lines formed at the refreshment counter; the dimly-lit corners; the laughter-filled Navy Drill Hall. This was the pervading atmosphere as maestro Gene Bertoncini struck up his combo in tribute to the football team's endeavors. Whether the game be played at home or away, be won or lost, hosts of friends gathered for an evening of boisterous jubilation. Everyone was there, from the BMOCs to the most secluded academician; from the handsome to the homely; from the tall to the small. For these memorable affairs have become a firmly entrenched tradition in the circle of Notre Dame social life. And what better opportunity was there to rehash the ball game, relate amusing incidents of Friday's pep rally, or just dance, than at the Saturday night Victory Dances?

STUDENT

Dick Lynch and Army's Bob Anderson tussle for the pigskin.

Busses for 500 spirited students lined up at the circle that sunny Friday afternoon, for the first leg of an 1,800 mile Student Football Trip. Over the rattling sound of the Pennsylvania Railroad coaches, arose the roar of cheers and predictions of victory over Army's Cadets. Insubstantial cream cheese with almond sandwiches warranted cries of another nature. The sun rose in Philadelphia to shine on a dramatic Notre Dame 23-21 victory, perhaps to go down in history as one of the greatest upsets of the famed series; and Monty Stickles was the man of the hour. That evening the bright lights of Times Square and candlelit cellars of Greenwich Village provided the background for celebration. October 13th, and the trippers reluctantly began the trek home, wearier but happier for the venture.

TRIPS

In the coldness of early November, large numbers of Seniors boarded buses for the invasion of Michigan State. Despite faulty navigation, the troops arrived in time to witness a new kind of pep rally which featured a Dixieland jazz band. Mixers, official and unofficial, followed in the Newman Center and about the campus, substantially relieving the academic minds from classroom routines. Sign-in sheets, morning checks and student manuals were forgotten temporarily. Rain, snow and mud covered Macklin Field Saturday morning, while the Big Ten atmosphere of raccoon coats, knee socks and cheerleaders with lipstick prevailed. The Spartan victory momentarily saddened the visiting Irish, but all was forgiven, come the evening's social activities. Sunday arrived all too soon, and the 1957 Senior Trip was a thing of the past.

EXECUTIVE HOLIDAY

. . . the commerce ball

Students in the College of Commerce left the office early Friday evening, the twenty-second of November. For these men in gray flannel suits and buttoned down collars, the night had been declared an "Executive Holiday." The La Fortune Student Center served as a tropical resort for the vacationing businessmen and their dates. Palm trees, sand, coconuts, a swimming pool and a golf course created a colorful Florida setting. The firm of Dan Belloc and Associates fulfilled their contract, providing a musical background for the commerce couples.

Bob Massman, a business administration major, served as director of the dance committee. His escort, Miss Claudia Carr of Kansas City, reigned as queen of the businessmen's weekend. Her coronation was expertly handled by the Rev. Theodore M. Hesburgh, C.S.C. The list of honored guests was complemented by the appearance of Commerce Dean James W. Culliton and Assistant Dean Thomas T. Murphy and their wives.

RODEO

Texas moved to Indiana on the last night of January to provide a wild 'n woolly western theme for the annual Engineers' Ball, "Rodeo." Round about nine o'clock 250 cow-hands and their best gals sauntered into the La Fortune Student Center. Split-rail fences circled the ball-room forming a Texan corral, while saddles, ten gallon hats, lariats and six-shooters were seen throughout the ranch. In between dance sets, couples visited camp fires or wandered through "boot hill."

Don Glasser and his Orchestra returned to Notre Dame for the rodeo, providing a well-balanced program of dancable arrangements. At intermission the Notre Dame Glee Club entertained the cowboy engineers. At this time Miss Ann Marstall of Middletown, Ohio, escorted by dance chairman Bob Norris, was crowned Queen of the Rodeo. Dean of Engineering Karl Schoenherr crowned the brunette cowgirl, as ranch hands cheered in approval.

DER WINTER WUNDERBAR

. . . the st. mary's winter carnival

"Der Winter Wunderbar," this year's edition of the St. Mary's Winter Carnival, was presented across the Dixie on February 8. Prayers for snow were answered with a seven-inch blanket, accompanied by sub-freezing temperatures. Still, some of the hardier souls spent the afternoon snow-sculpturing, sleigh-riding, and skating on Lake Marion. The more sane couples were welcomed to the warmer Campus Clubhouse, where songs were sung, spades bid, dice rolled, and fortunes told.

A somewhat distorted comedy version of "Romeo and Juliet" was presented to the carnival goers in St. Angela's Hall. Later the entertainment continued on Lake Marion. Sheila Murphy, North American speed and figure skating champion, displayed her talent to an appreciative audience. The day's activities concluded after an indoor picnic as Gene Bertonecini and his combo accompanied several hundred dancers in the Le Mans Hall ballroom.

NIGHT IN NEW ORLEANS

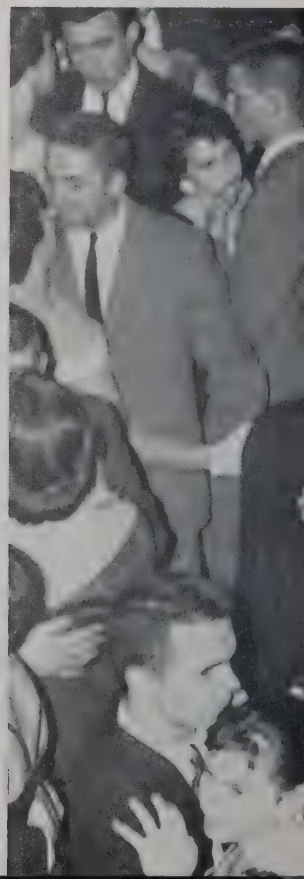

. . . the mardi gras ball

The fourteenth evening of February saw the campus social season reach its peak as Kai Winding, his famous Septet, and thirteen hundred revelers spent a thrilling "Night in New Orleans" to inaugurate the 1958 Mardi Gras Festival.

Within the La Fortune Student Center, a multi-colored array of balloons, streamers, grotesque masks, and wrought-iron balconies simulated the famous pre-lenten festival of New Orleans. The Rathskellar, dressed in the gaiety of Canal Street, attracted crowds to the checker-clothed tables of a sidewalk cafe. In the ballroom above, a garden setting enclosed the dancing couples. From the dance floor, a circular staircase ascended to a balcony above the bandstand. Here, at the climax of the evening, Rev. Theodore M. Hesburgh, C.S.C., crowned Miss Mary Lee Loughlin Queen of the Weekend, while Miss Joyce Robinson received her laurels as Queen of the Ball. They were escorted by General Chairman Dave McMahon and Dance Chairman Gep Durenberger.

FESTIVAL ON CANAL STREET

... the mardi gras carnival

Mardi Gras at Notre Dame! The frivolity, the jubilation, the costumes, the gaudy decorations; it seems strange indeed to those visitors unaccustomed to the social life on the campus. But once a year, the Notre Dame version of the "infamous" New Orleans festival takes place, as the Navy Drill Hall yields its sounds of marching feet to those of whirling roulette wheels, clickity-clacking dice, shuffling cards. And the resonance of the barkers' cries—"Everyone's a winner; all bets down, please"—extends far into the night. But don't stop here, for this is Mardi Gras time. And what is Mardi Gras without the grace of feminine beauty? Yes, we have a stage show, so aptly presented by the bouncing, bewitching, bombastic belles of St. Mary's. Then, too, the pizza, perfect for fortifying one's energies while awaiting his opportunity for the supreme but gratifying effort of drowning student government in sweet "revenge." And when the carnival, having run its three day course, ceases, the merriment still prevails. AND MIXERS

Saturday night is party night at the Student Center. Records blare over the high pitch of conversation as dancing couples struggle for position amidst the mayhem of a growing crowd. And the crowd grows and grows, filling one by one the many rooms of the Center. Soon the dancers retreat from the ballroom floor, kicked and bruised, seeking the quiet refuge of darkened corners. The stag line grows until the normal seven to one ratio is reached, whereupon the familiar hidden glances and clichéd introductions of the Notre Dame mixer follow. Pleasantries about the weather, major sequences, sack dresses, and the future of football become the basis on which lasting friendships are built. Toes are stepped on and apologies made. The phonograph needle sticks during the height of a Frank Sinatra record, setting the dancers to stumbling about. Then the pause of bewilderment; then the laughter. It's not the Junior Prom, but it is as much a part of Notre Dame as Knute Rockne.

BEAUX ARTS

A visitor to the Erskine Country Club on the night of the twentieth of April would have been quite amazed when he entered the main ballroom. For before his very eyes were Lana Turner and her former boyfriend, a satellite with human occupants, savage warriors, Toulouse Lautrec, and other characters of today, tomorrow, and yesteryear. The occasion for this unusual gathering was the annual Architects' Ball, appropriately titled "Beaux Arts."

The theme for the dance this year was the common collegiate nomer for a fake, "Pseudo." Thus there was an opportunity for dressing in a wide array of costumes. Earlier in the evening the couples attended a buffet dinner and then held an informal decorating party. Later, at the hour of nine, the music of Gene Bertoncini and his orchestra began to flow above the dancers. The high point of the evening came at eleven when the ballgoers promenaded in a grand march climaxed by the selection of the best costumed couple.

... the freshman formal

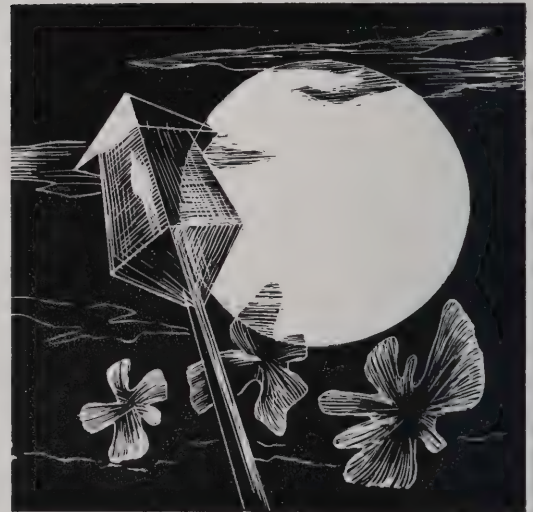

Miss Mary Ellen Norris
Queen of the Freshman Formal

Moonbeams flowed through soft, white clouds onto four hundred freshmen and their dates as they waltzed to Buddy Laine's whispering music of tomorrow. Spring was in the air that early May evening as the Freshmen took part in their first class formal, "Moonglow." The La Fortune Student Center was transformed into a refreshing garden, as couples strolled through its lantern lit paths, arched bridges, and sidewalk cafes. Occasionally they paused for a moment to reminisce at the Moonglow Wishing Well.

At the hour of eleven, with the glow of the moon providing the setting, Rev. Theodore M. Hesburgh, C.S.C., crowned Miss Mary Ellen Norris of St. Mary's College queen of the dance. Her highness and her escort, Jim Kaval, chairman of the Freshman Formal committee, then slipped onto the dance floor for the coronation waltz.

STARLIGHT IN MODERN

... the junior prom

After an eighteen month span between formal dances, the Junior class returned to the social spotlight with their presentation of "Starlight in Modern." The spacious drill hall saw seven hundred couples enter that evening of May ninth. The building was hardly recognizable after a most thorough rejuvenation by the decorations committee. The hall was divided into rooms illuminated by an unusual system of indirect lighting. In this setting, the Juniors danced to the music of the "Band of the Year," Les and Larry Elgart and their Orchestra, who again brought their "Sophisticated Swing" to the Notre Dame campus.

Came eleven and Rev. Theodore M. Hesburgh, C.S.C., appeared for the crowning of the Junior Prom Queen. The lucky lady was Miss Freddie Cartwright, who was escorted to the dance by Hugh Murphy, chairman of the Prom. Then the dancing resumed as the Elgart sound again flowed through the warm spring evening.

DIMENSIONS

... the senior ball

Queen Ann Rodabaugh and Bob Duffy, chairman of the ball.

Decorated in truly new "Dimensions," the 1958 Senior Ball lured seven hundred couples to the Navy Drill Hall the night of the sixteenth of May. The couples passed through the misty air of Spring into a modernized setting for their "last fling" at Notre Dame. A night club was created by the Senior architects, who constructed a multi-leveled tier for tables where the dancers could take a break between sets. But when they were swinging about the dance floor, the famous trumpet of Harry James and his Music Makers provided the accompaniment.

Chairman Bob Duffy brought his lovely date, Miss Ann Rodabaugh, to the bandstand for the final coronation of the year. And performing the honors again was Father Hesburgh, who has become an expert in the art during his years as President at Notre Dame. The dancing then resumed for the happy couples, who will never forget their last social "dimensions" at Notre Dame.

Council Number 1477, Notre Dame chapter of the Knights of Columbus, is the oldest and largest council of this international fraternal order in existence. Besides this distinction, it also is acclaimed to be one of the most active councils in the country, achieving "Star Council" recognition for the past two consecutive years. Perhaps its most outstanding event is the promotion of the annual Bengal Bouts. Add to this various activities as a full-coverage life insurance program, the annual K of C Ball, Christmas party, spring picnic and several Communion Breakfasts, it is readily seen why Notre Dame's Knights gain national prestige for their various fraternal functions. With its office and meeting chambers located in the basement of Walsh Hall, all business proceedings are administered here on campus. Each year the Knights initiate at least one-hundred new members into their order.

UNIVERSITY OF NOTRE DAME

Glee Club

Daniel H. Pedtke, Director

The prestige of the Notre Dame Glee Club has grown tremendously since its beginning in 1915. Traveling thousands of miles each year, singing from coast to coast and border to border, they have entertained millions from the concert stage, and on radio and television.

The Club is a student-managed organization and dare not leave campus without a minimum fee assured to cover transportation, hotel, and food expenses.

Its officers, guided by Professor Daniel H. Pedtke, arrange the details of every appearance, be it a football "pep rally," an intermission program in the Student Center, a one night stand in Chicago, or a two week tour of New England.

Local entertainment keeps the Club busy in South Bend and other comparatively nearby localities between tours, when civic groups ask Mr. Pedtke to send a quartet or octet to entertain them. These appearances, coupled with intensive choral training, give them the necessary polish to perform operatic, classical, semi-classical, popular, and humorous numbers in their two hour concerts.

Strengthened by the tradition of forty years of fine music and entertainment, the choraliers are always ready to sing for the benefit of needy charities throughout the country.

Drum Major—Richard J. Kopituk

Performing this year at all the home football games, all pep rallies, before 100,000 people in Philadelphia for the Army game, at Bay City, Michigan, for St. Patrick's Day, and at the Old Timers' Game in May, the Notre Dame Marching Band has completed another successful year representing the school. Under the direction of Mr. Robert F. O'Brien, director of bands, and Robert F. Brown, assistant director, one hundred ten men performed as a well-trained accomplished outfit. The band is a student organization in the full meaning of the word. Much of the work of organization and administration falls directly into the hands of the elected and student officers. President this year was Michael Voeller, and drum major was Richard J. Kopituk. Included in the elaborate program of music and maneuvers are the well-known "Victory March" and the fancy "hike step." This year the colorful group concentrated on reviving the beautiful hymn "Notre Dame Our Mother."

MARCHING BAND

"The Band of the Fighting Irish"

Made up of approximately sixty men, mostly from the Marching Band, the Concert Band is formed every year at the end of football season. Directed by Mr. Robert F. O'Brien, the group performed this year on an extended tour during Easter vacation. On the trip they appeared at such cities as Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, New York City, Providence, Rhode Island, and Toledo, Ohio, and many others. In addition to the tour they appeared in South Bend, at the campus Christmas concert, the Washington Day exercises, the annual Boy Scouts' banquet, and the graduation day ceremonies. The Band is unique in the college band field because of its extensive tour work. The group annually travels over 3,500 miles and is heard by nearly a quarter of a million people. It is estimated that a four year member of the band travels at least 12,000 miles on tours. The Concert Band is governed by its own student officers who plan tours and control the administration of the group.

UNIVERSITY THEATER

OKLAHOMA

Oklahoma rehearsals enter their final stage.

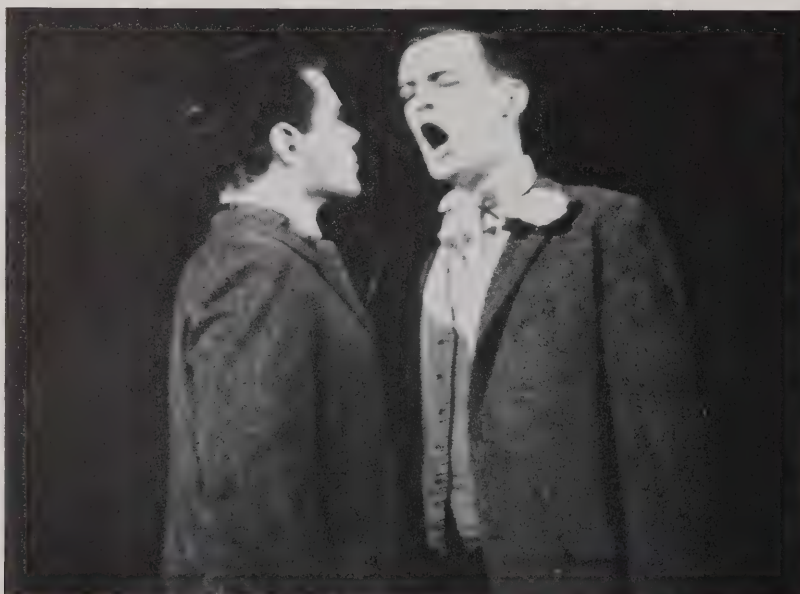

TIME LIMIT

The University Theatre inaugurated its activities for the year with a vigorous production of Time Limit, which played in Washington Hall November 13 through 17. The play, which deals with the effects of Communist brainwashing on American POW's, was written by Henry Denker and Ralph Berkey, and enjoyed a run on Broadway two seasons ago. The story centers about a tormented turncoat, Major Harry Cargill, and the events which led up to his betrayal of his country.

Reg Bain appeared as Major Cargill, and Dan Ferrone played Lt. Colonel Edwards, the crusading army lawyer who is determined to get to the bottom of the puzzling case. Michael Kennedy was General Connors, the patriotic military man who found out his own son was a traitor, and Jerry Dodge assumed his first dramatic role as young Lieutenant Miller. Other leading members of this large cast were Frank Draine, Georgia Ann Weber, Dave Shanahan, Meg Nerad, Lee Lagesie and Jim Cooney. The tight action moved at a suspenseful pace, under the direction of Rev. Arthur Harvey, C.S.C.

IMPORTANCE OF BEING EARNEST

The second production, which took place February 12 through 16, was the comic classic by Oscar Wilde, the Importance of Being Earnest. Mr. Fred Syburg, director of the play, chose a highly stylized mode of acting to present the glib satire of Victorian drawing room manners. The hit of the evening was scored by Jim Cooney as the affable but rather worthless young gentleman, Algernon Moncrieff. With split second timing and a fantastic range of facial expressions, Cooney kept the audience in stitches from the moment he stepped on the stage. Again found in a leading role was Dan Ferrone, who played Jack (Earnest) Worthing, the wealthy young possessor of a dual identity. Claire Ann Bryne was impressive as the matronly Lady Bracknell, and Jerry Dodge gave further testimony of his versatility by his delightful portrayal of the stuffy Rev. Chasuble. Others in the cast were Jerry Broderick, Meg Nerad, Georgia Ann Weber, Pat Ferris and Rudy Hornish. The stylized set with its memorable self-opening doors, was designed by Mr. Gilbert Rathbun.

WSND, the student operated radio station of the University of Notre Dame, has completed its eleventh year of "Serving Notre Dame."

This year the station brought many new features to the Students of Notre Dame. Among the highlights were interviews with Robert Kennedy, Paul Butler and the Four Freshmen. The staff of WSND traveled to New York City and Annapolis to bring Notre Dame basketball games with N.Y.U. and Navy. A special feature this year was the remote broadcast of the Mardi Gras Carnival from the drill hall. Service was extended to the Morris Inn, Keenan Hall and Stanford Hall, giving everyone an opportunity to enjoy the broadcast.

Twenty-one of WSND's announcers, engineers and businessmen will graduate from school this year. Next year's staff will have to work hard to match the fine job done this year.

Publications

UNIVERSITY PRESS

The University of Notre Dame Press is organized, like its fellow members of the Association of American University Presses, to publish the results of research for the benefit of other scholars and to publish authentic interpretations of such scholarship for laymen. The Notre Dame Press has published liturgical studies, lecture and conference notes, international studies, results of scientific research, books of individual literary importance, and a series of religion texts now in use in more than a hundred colleges. John P. Defant is Director of the Press. Editorial policy is determined by the Board of Publications, composed of the Reverends Paul Beichner, C.S.C., Dean of the graduate school, Chairman; Philip Moore, C.S.C., Vice-President in charge of Academic Affairs; and Jerome Wilson, C.S.C., Vice-President in charge of Business Affairs; and Professors A. technical review

The "Technical Review," quarterly publication of the University of Notre Dame, serves the students of the College of Engineering through the medium of technical writing. A member of the Engineering College Magazines Associated, the "Technical Review" solicits all feature articles directly from the engineering student body from which is drawn its entire staff.

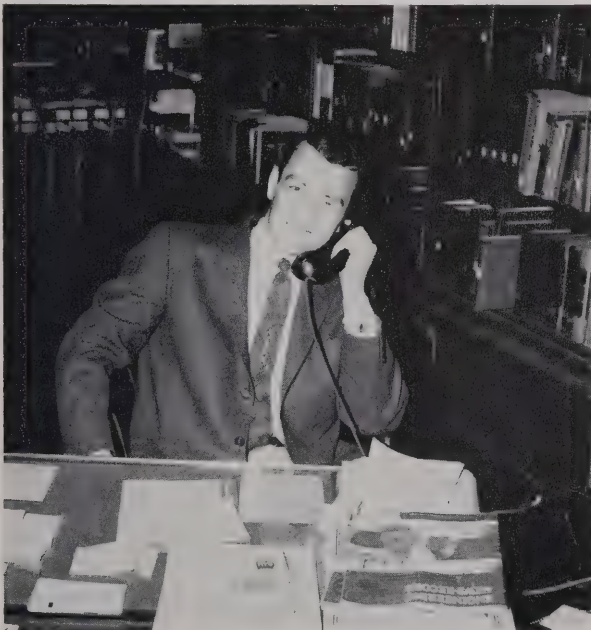

Directing the affairs of this magazine, the editor-in-chief delegates responsibility to two principal staffs, editorial and business. The latter, under the direction of the business manager, has as its main responsibility the acquisition of advertising, both local and national, and also aids in the physical layout of the magazine. The editorial staff consists of two associate editors aided by subordinate editors in charge of articles, copy, features, and circulation, together with their respective staffs. The function of this section of the organization is to solicit and rewrite articles, to contribute features and to assist in the layout and assembly of the magazine in general.

Subsequently, since its initial publication in 1949, the "Technical Review" has won a number of national awards while establishing itself as a leading engineering magazine.

NOTRE DAME LAWYER

Monographs found in law reviews such as the NOTRE DAME LAWYER are relied upon by judges and lawyers as authoritative expressions of "the law," and the stimulus that these law review articles give to the development of the law is recognized throughout the legal profession. But this description of the role of law review articles is not meant to give a "cheerless impression of the solemn and ponderous"; for everyday encounters with legal developments and recent court opinions offer legal adventure and intellectual challenge to the men of the LAWYER staff.

The principal articles in the LAWYER are written by practicing attorneys, professors and judges, and edited by the LAWYER staff and editorial board; articles by students, members of the staff, round out the material for publication. These writing and editing processes for the lawyer-to-be develop skills in analysis and research to a degree beyond that ordinarily obtainable through classroom work.

Positions on the staff of the LAWYER are available only to those students who have excelled academically during their first and second years in the law school.

The Scholastic

According to official designation, the Scholastic is the weekly student news magazine of the University of Notre Dame. But what exactly does that mean? What role, what purpose does the Scholastic fulfill?

First of all the Scholastic tries to report campus news—both regular and sport. It keeps the student body and the faculty aware of what is going on around the University—who is lecturing, what the various campus organizations are doing, what social events are going on, and how the athletic teams are faring. But the Scholastic tries to do more than just report a lot of facts. Through short fiction, a weekly humor column, covers and cartoons, it tries to entertain its readers. But most important of all, through the “Back Page,” feature stories, and the editorials, as well as the news stories, the Scholastic seeks to create discussion about important campus issues, to promote worthy campus organizations and events, and thus to make for a better Notre Dame—one where the student body is keenly aware of what is going on, actively participating in the discussion and cultural process, and thus becoming truly educated men.

the Juggler

The Juggler is Notre Dame's literary magazine, published four times per year. Basically, it serves as a journal of formation, dedicated to providing an outlet for fiction, poetry, and criticism written by members of the student body.

It attempts to encourage promising writers to develop their talents by offering criticism for each work submitted. The magazine itself exhibits to the students and friends of the University, creative ability which might otherwise go unnoticed.

Organizationally, it is composed of an editorial board, which determines the suitability of articles for publication, as well as writing the previously mentioned individual criticism. Working in conjunction with the editorial board is the business staff, which superintends the management of the magazine.

Beginning this year, the incoming editorial board was selected by the outgoing board on the basis of competitive interviews. Any student was eligible, regardless of college: in fact, the present board represents nearly every college in the University.

Another addition to the Juggler this year consisted in a change of cover design, and the use of art work to improve the general appearance of the magazine. Monthly banquets were also held, to which faculty members were invited to remark on particular phases of study in which they specialized.

the DOME

The Dome is a yearbook; the yearbook of the University of Notre Dame. It consists of 368 bound pages of pictures, copy and white space. It takes one year to produce this yearbook. A year is a long time. But it is a wonder that the book gets to the publisher. The year begins with the selection of the editor-in-chief and his staff, who formulate ideas. It progresses through fall in an unfettered atmosphere. It progresses through winter with a few contracts to sign. Then, wham; it reaches spring. The office becomes a cluttered mass of pictures, notes, copy, cuts, proofs, coffee and stale cigarette butts. The deadlines have to be met! And then it is all over. The yearbook is distributed, a handsomely coordinated portfolio of facts, figures and photographs. And the staff settles back to relax, its work completed, deciding the rush-rush was worth remembering the year.

Athletic Director

Even the most successful of teams will soon find itself in distressing circumstances if it has no one to intergrate its schedule and handle its public relations. And for almost a decade, 24 hours a day, 12 months a year, Edward W. (Moose) Krause has been organizing, coordinating, and directing the many sports here at Notre Dame.

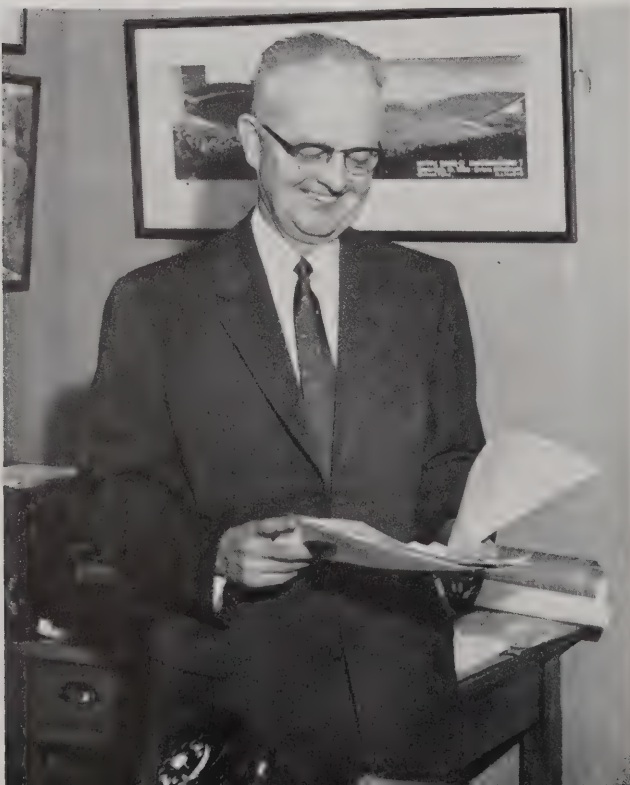

All-American for Notre Dame in football and basketball, Moose has served at one time or another as line coach of football, head coach of basketball and, since 1949, as Director of Athletics.

The consistently high quality of Notre Dame's teams and the equally fine caliber of its opposition are impressive evidence of Krause's outstanding ability as athletics director. During his nine-year tenure he has produced a marvelously well-rounded athletic program which is a tribute to the university, its students, and to an athletic director who really knows his job.

Business Manager

How would you like to have 50,000-odd people over to your place for a good time? During the football season, Herbert E. Jones does. Ushers, repairmen, messengers, all 900 of them answer to him. But aside from the stadium contests, Mr. Jones supervises all fieldhouse activities. Notre Dame grad Jones' biggest job, however, is in handling the business that arises from the extensive Notre Dame athletic program. All athletic purchasing, contests, bills, and home and away arrangements are handled by Mr. Jones. He has held this position since 1940 and deals with all and any Notre Dame athletic business matters from football to golf.

Publicity

Another intricate part of the Notre Dame athletic scene is the department of Sports Publicity, which is headed by Charles M. Callahan. In this position Charlie must supervise all of his office's releases concerning not only football but also all other Notre Dame sports. He also must assume the responsibility for publishing the programs for all home football games. And throughout the year Charlie must be sure that all visiting photographers, sportswriters and sportscasters are received hospitably and are made comfortable during their brief visits to Notre Dame.

A busy job it is, but Charlie handles it with the greatest efficiency and makes certain that the Irish sports scene is well-known throughout the world.

Tickets

Long before the first fall cheer is heard on campus, Mr. Robert N. Cahill and his staff have been hard at work selling the hundreds of thousands of anxiously sought tickets for Irish football games. Actually the ticket selling is probably the least of his problems, since rarely are Irish football tickets plentiful.

Except for three years wartime Navy duty, Notre Dame grad Cahill has served as ticket manager since 1941. It is unfortunate that after all the football work he does, Cahill rarely ever gets to see a game, He's usually in the box office staving off last minute complications.

Comeback!

"Goats of '56" become "Heroes of '57"

To every football team, at some year in its existence, the mortal challenge comes.

The 1957 season thrust such a challenge upon Notre Dame for the first time. Never before had the Irish been forced to rebound from a losing season. Never before had they been required to prove that they were one of the country's greats. But the challenge was not simply one of winning football games. It was total—being a threat to the spirit and prestige of Notre Dame football and a personal test for both the players and the coaches.

1956-'57 had been a long winter for the glum Notre Dame fans. The past season's poor showing had hardened most of their views towards the coming fall. Some, but not many, despaired. "The Fighting Irish have finally been crushed by modern college football's machinery," they sighed. Grid enemies of Notre Dame were loud in their glee. Some sportswriters predicted 1957 as the Irish's final banishment from big time ball.

It was also a long winter for coach Terry Brennan and his staff. Terry, the butt of much adverse comment during the last season, knew only too well the seriousness of these challenges. He took a close look at his battle-trained team, most of whom would be returning for two more years, and cautiously predicted 1958 as the big season for the Irish. Of course he did not overlook 1957, but the terrifying schedule that included just about every great team in the country, seemed overpowering to his supposedly sub-par team. Even the most optimistic rooters could see little better than an even split.

And it was also a long winter for the men on the team. They still smarted from the wounds that had been inflicted on them the previous season when they had been shackled with the label of the "goats of '56." They would not get a chance to avenge themselves until the following fall.

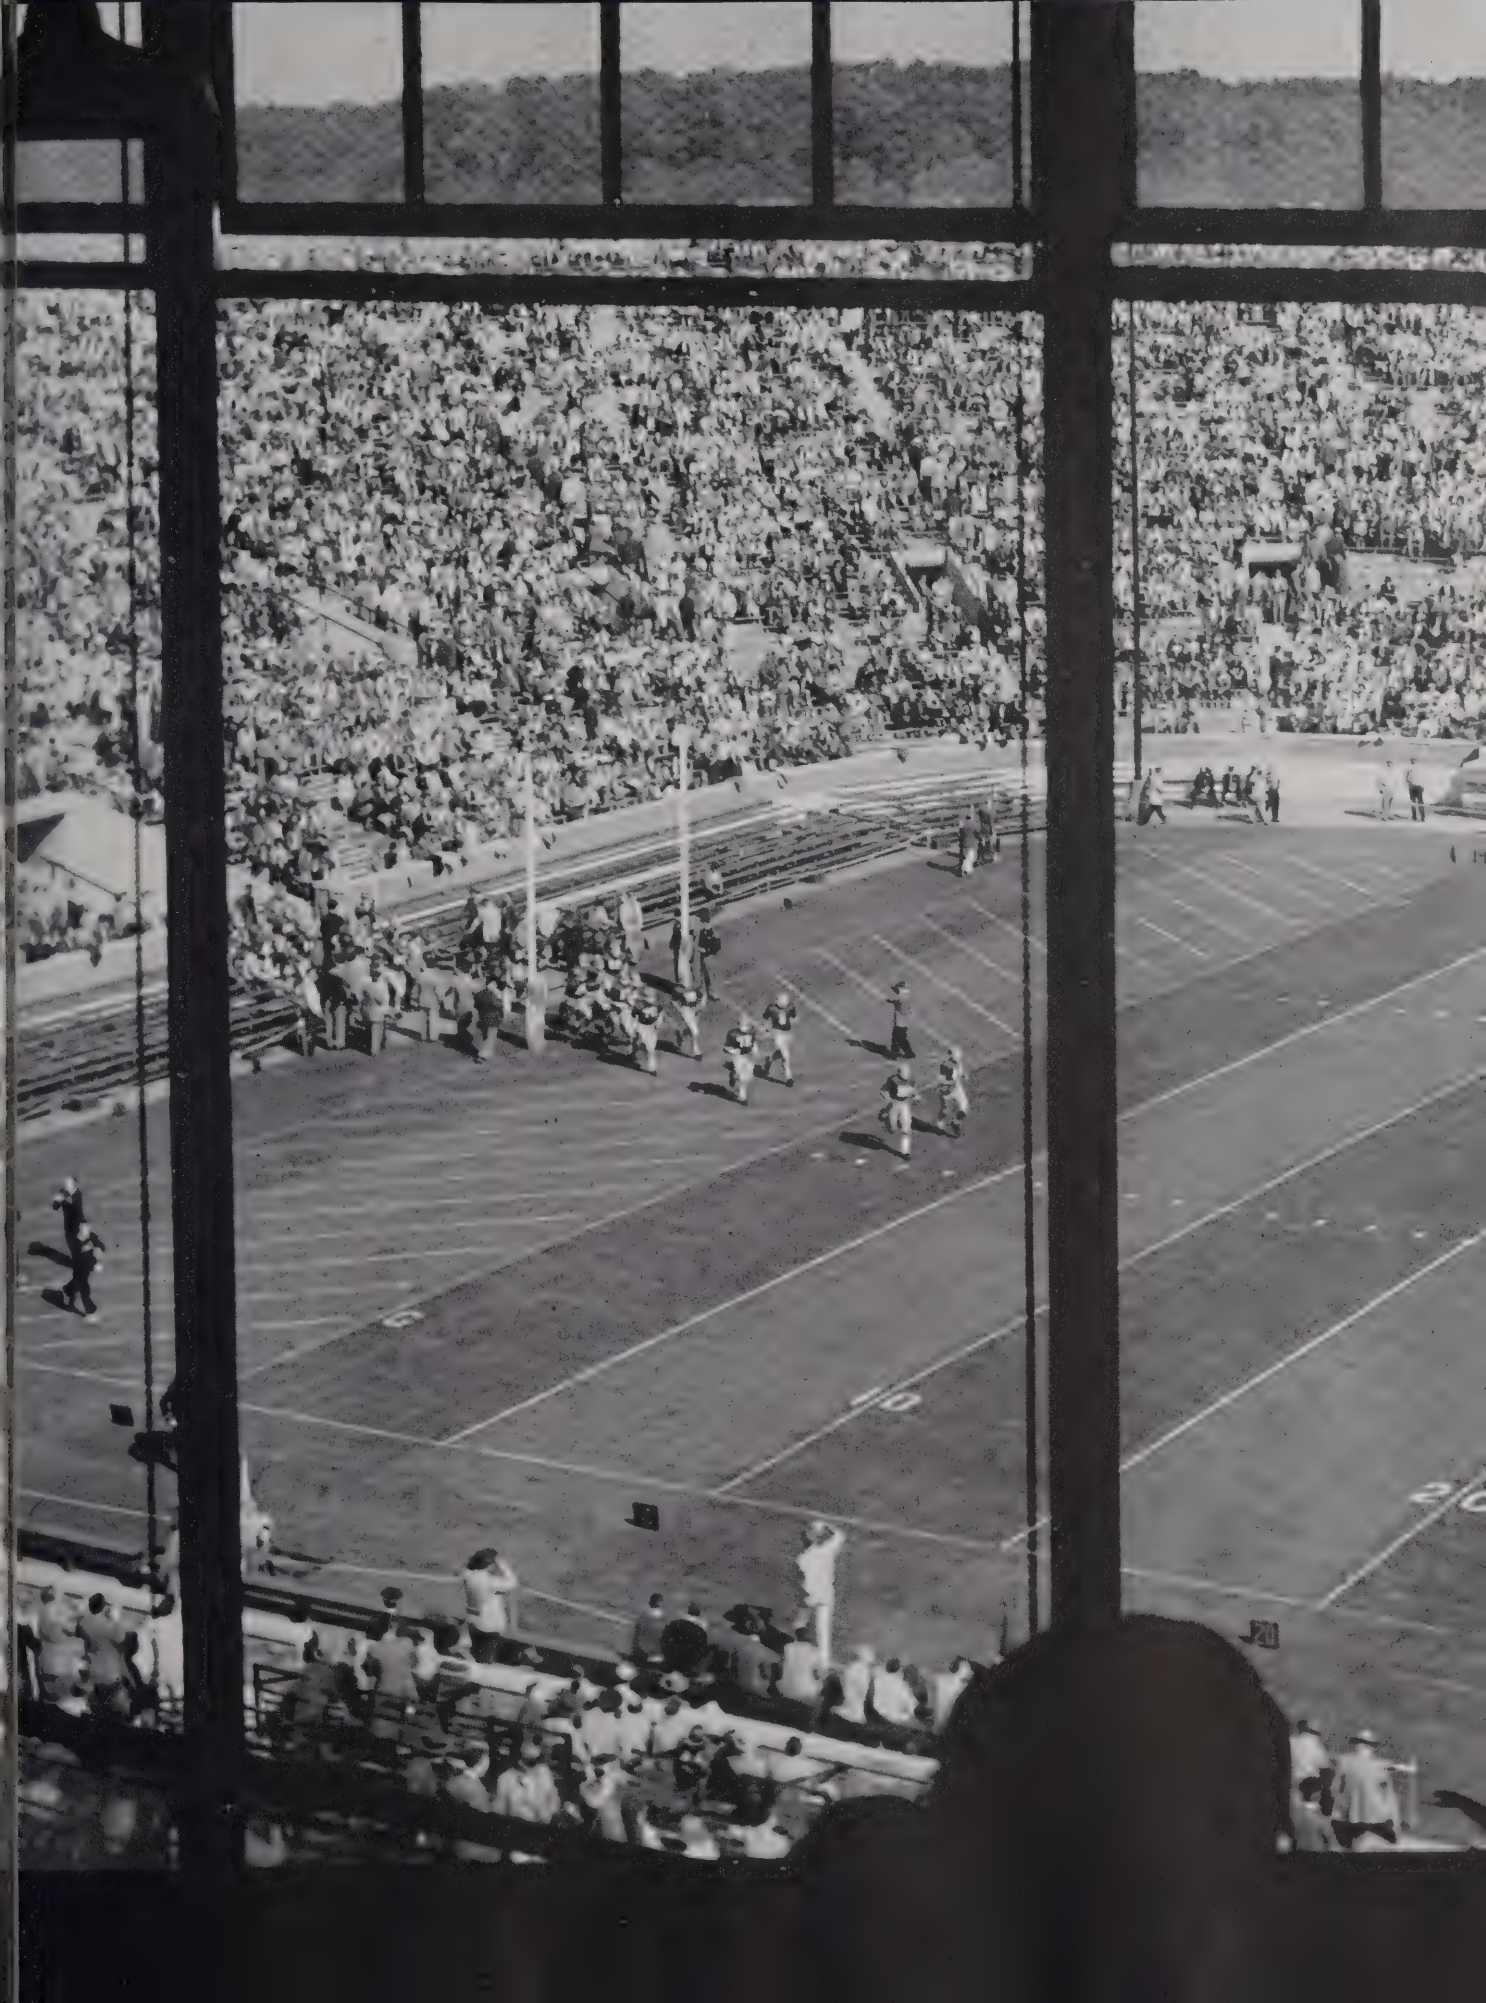

Spring practice was but an optimistic building of the apprehension that was growing towards the fall, since it held no surprises in either direction. September came and with it, everyone concerned with Irish football anxiously sought to spur the team once again to the top of the heap. However, as one opposing newsman reported Notre Dame's victory possibilities, it looked like the Irish were fielding the same old losing team.

And so it was amid the clamor of "suicide schedule . . . still a year away . . . same guys without Hornung" and other such demoralizing quotes that Notre Dame prepared to meet the challenge.

The Purdue game didn't solve anything. Neither did Indiana. Sure, they were shutouts and sure they gave the team the confidence that it could win. But it was a shaky start. Neither the Boilermakers nor the Hoosiers had much at this point and the Irish didn't exactly overwhelm them. But Army . . . that was different. Somewhere in the dirty gray horseshoe of Philadelphia's Municipal Stadium, the Irish discovered the kindling to ignite that old spark. Whether it was the bally-hoo attached to the game, the huge crowd of subway alumni,

AVENGING TERRIERS BITE BOILERMAKERS

Lafayette, Ind., Sept. 28—"Green Sophomores" became members of a rebounding "Fighting Irish" football team today as the gridders from Notre Dame froze the Purdue Boilermakers, 12-0, before 52,000 in the season opener at Ross-Ade Stadium.

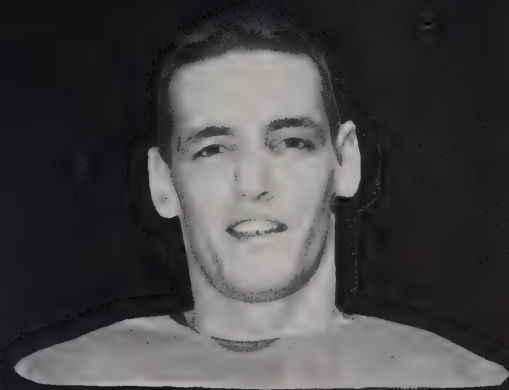

A 77 yard touchdown drive mid-way in the first quarter gave the Irish the necessary confidence and sufficient margin for the victory. Spanning the distance in seven plays, Notre Dame hit paydirt when Dick Lynch skirted left end from 12 yards out, high-stepping would-be tacklers along the way.

Following the second and third quarters, which featured a surprisingly stiff Irish defense, Notre Dame engineered its last scoring drive, unexpected and unnecessary, in the final two minutes of the game. Quarterback Bob Williams surprised the Boilermaker defense by combining with Bob Wetoska on a 59 yard pass-play which carried to the Purdue six. On the next play, Williams shot a quick bullet-like pass to Buddy Reynolds in the end zone to secure this first and perhaps psychologically the biggest Irish victory of the season.

IRISH BECOME HOOSIERLAND CHAMPS

Notre Dame, Ind., Oct. 5—Notre Dame gained the second rung of its comeback ladder today by capitalizing on a flurry of poor Indiana punts to effectively trounce the Hoosiers, 26-0, in the 27th renewal of the series between the two state rivals.

A pair of short Indiana punts gave the Irish two quick first quarter touchdowns. Midway in the period Notre Dame smartly moved 54 yards in 12 plays with Halfback Dick Lynch knifing over from the one. Don White's kick was good. Moments later, using only three plays, including a flashing 21 yard run by George Izo, the Irish scored with Chuck Lima carrying over from the one.

The count went to 19-0 when, with 3:20 left in the half, Bob Williams

In the second half Notre Dame was content to play defensive ball, choking all Hoosier advances. It wasn't until the final minutes that the Irish organized another scoring drive, this one culminating with Jim Just's seven yard burst which in turn brought forth chants of "Beat Army."

NICK PIETROSANTE
Fullback

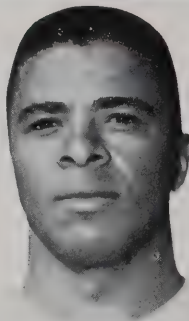

Bob Anderson, sophomore All-American, runs into four upset-minded Irish.

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 12—The legend of Rockne, Dorias, Cipp, Wilson, Blanchard and Davis came back to life today. Playing in the shadows of these greats, Nick Pietrosante, Monty Stickles, Bob Anderson, and Pete Dawkins added an even new lore to the Army-Notre Dame series as these two old rivals resumed their battles after a ten year truce. This, the 34th meeting of the Irish and Cadets, was perhaps the wildest offensive battle of them all and when all the thrills had been shuffled, Stickles was the hero, Pietrosante was the most valuable player, and the Irish were the winners.

In almost three quarters of play, Anderson and Dawkins had manufactured a seemingly insurmountable 21-7 Army lead. But then the flu-ridden Irish went to work. Pietrosante, who had accounted for the lone Notre Dame TD, barrelled 65 yards for another goal. The Irish defense jammed the Army machine, and the offense put Dick Lynch to work, hammering at the Cadet line, until he finally shattered it from inches out with the apparent equalizer. But Stickles missed the conversion and it was 21-20, still Army.

But, Notre Dame wasn't to be stopped. Pietrosante, with an assist from Frank Geremia, intercepted a Cadet aerial on the enemy 26. Three plays gained only 10 yards. Then, Stickles got the kicking out. The goal posts stood 29 yards out and slightly off to the left. Monty Stickles put it right between them and that

Notre Dame, Ind., Oct. 26—Notre Dame's Fighting Irish, with their backs once again to the wall, came from behind in the fourth quarter to notch a spectacular 13-7 win over Pittsburgh.

The Irish, short on manpower due to illness, injury, and the ejection of players, relied on reserves. It paid off when a George Izo-to-Aubrey Lewis pass clicked for 74 yards and the game-winning touchdown.

The jumbo-sized Pitt line, heaviest in the country, troubled Notre Dame throughout the game. The Irish pierced it only once, late in the first quarter, when Frank Reynolds capped a 52 yard drive by plowing over from the one. The Panthers, in the second quarter, more than balanced the ND tally with Bill Kaliden's two-foot touchdown scramble and Ivan Tonicic's extra point.

Notre Dame was nearing the desperation stage early in the final period when with a third and four situation on his own 26, Izo beautifully connected with the fleet-footed Lewis who had slipped behind the Pitt secondary. The Irish had their fourth win.

MIDDIES SCUTTLE N.D.

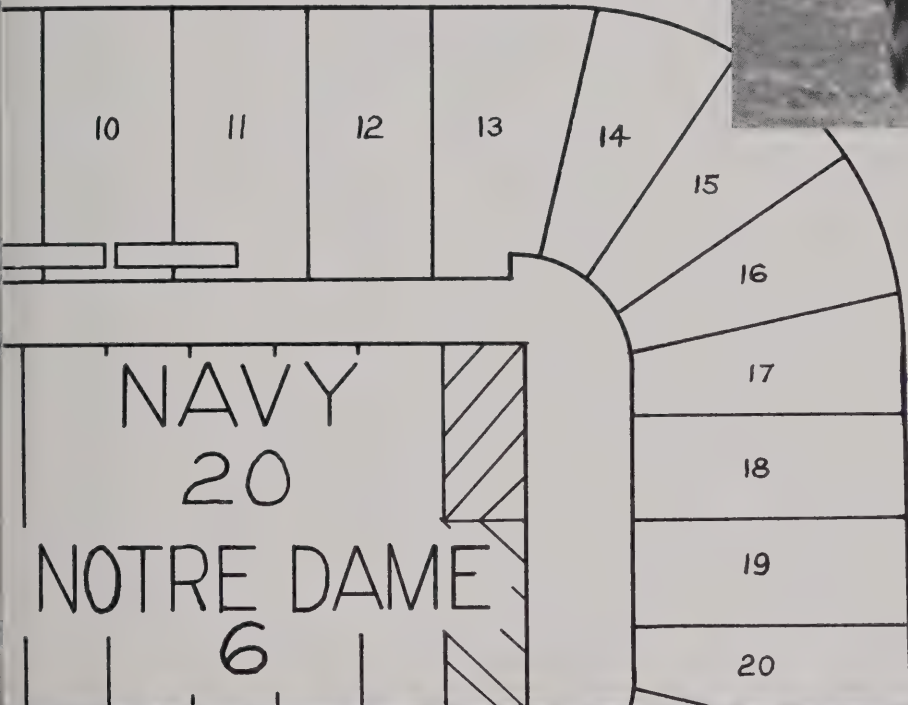

Notre Dame, Ind., Nov. 2—Under dark, somber, drizzly skies, Notre Dame's visions of an unbeaten season were washed away this afternoon by a driving Navy team which, led by substitute fullback Ray Wellborn, capsized the Irish, 20-6, before a sellout crowd in the ND stadium.

Striking in sudden and unexpected fashion, Notre Dame grabbed an early 6-0 lead in the first quarter. With Navy in possession near the mid-field, the Irish pushed hard. Wellborn fumbled, Lynch recovered and headed goalward. Ruaning 46 yards, he eluded the pursuing Sailors for an easy touchdown.

But that was it for the Irish. Navy's constantly moving defensive line proved a never-solved puzzle for the ND offense. And Lynch hurdles Wellborn in attempt to outrun Navy's Fritzinger.

Wellborn more than atoned for his mis-cue by accounting for the three Middies scores, one in each of the remaining periods on runs of 79, 1, and 32 yards. This defeat marked only the sixth loss suffered by the Irish in the thirty-one games of college football's longest continuous intersectional rivalry.

WARRING SPARTANS FLANK IRISH

East Lansing, Mich., Nov. 6 — Over 73,000 well-bundled fans watched the Spartans of Michigan State combine poise and power to wear down a tough Irish defense today in grinding out a 34 to 6 victory in the freezing, wind-swept stadium at East Lansing.

The Irish defense, which started strong, began to stagger on the combination of the Spartan's accurate passing and wide-sweeping end runs. State piled up seven points in the second quarter, 20 in the third, and seven more in the final period.

The lone Irish tally came in the fourth quarter as Bob Williams, passing effectively to Stickles, Ward, and Wetoska, moved the ball to the Spartan three. From there the Irish quarterback hurdled the line for the lone ND touchdown.

Contributions of many ND fumbles and penalties aided the powerful Spartans in the large but deceiving 34-6 score. This feeling was restated after the game as Coach Daugherty agreed, "Notre Dame played a much better game than the score would indicate."

INVINCIBILITY SHATTERS BEFORE GRIM IRISH REALITY

Norman, Okla., Nov. 16—NOTRE DAME 7—OKLAHOMA 0. By those 7 points did the Irish, playing their old role to the hilt, smash the legend that was Oklahoma, unbeaten in 47 successive football battles and never shutout in 123 consecutive games! By those seven points did Notre Dame shake the Sooners to earth on the same Owen Field turf where ND had dealt them their last defeat in 1953.

The Irish got those precious 7 points late in the final quarter after nine glorious minutes of old-fashioned, hammering offensive football had carried them 80 yards in 19 plays. Nick Pietrosante provided the fuel to keep the drive moving as he repeatedly picked up the necessary yardage when Bob Williams called on him in third down situations. And it was Pietrosante who threw the key block when Dick Lynch, on a fourth down play, took a pitchout from Williams and swept around right end for the final three yards and the score that broke so many Oklahoma hearts. Monty Stickles' conversion was added trimming.

HAWKS DASH N.D. HOPES FOR UPSET

Notre Dame, Ind., Nov. 23—Notre Dame was denied its bid for a second straight upset today as Iowa combined a little bit of luck and a little bit too much power to stop the Irish, 21-13, before a sellout crowd in the N.D. stadium.

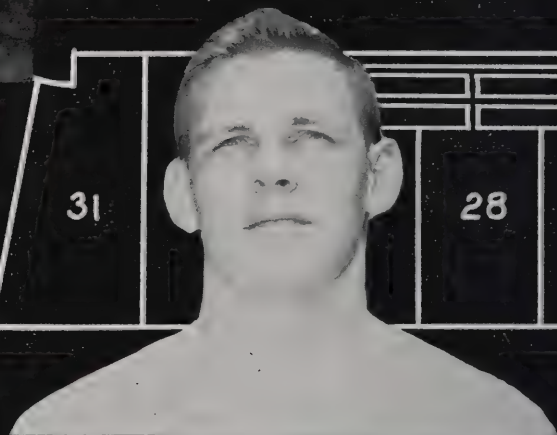

After two quick Iowa touchdowns the Irish retaliated on Izo's aerial to Stickles good for 55 yards and a 14-6 game at halftime. Then, in the waning minutes of the third quarter, Notre Dame drew to within a point when Ron Toth broke wide at left end, travelling 14 yards into T.D. territory.

The stage was set for another upset, but it didn't come off. The Irish offense stalled, was forced to punt and Iowa churned back to the N.D. 16. Here, lady luck shone brilliantly on the Hawks as Randy Duncan fired a pass into the end zone where it bounced off one receiver, two Irish defenders, and into the arms of surprised onlooker Don Norton for the clinching touchdown.

IRISH ATTACK OVERWHELMS U.S.C.

Notre Dame, Ind., Nov. 30—The Irish offense rode rampant for the first time in two years this afternoon to bury Southern California under a six touchdown barrage, 40-12, in the snow-banked Notre Dame stadium.

The Fighting Irish mixed the passing talents of Bob Williams with the flashy running of two previously unheard of sophomore halfbacks, Pat Doyle and Jim Crotty, to mold the magic scoring potion. Twice, in the first and last periods, Williams passed to Monty Stickles for touchdowns. Doyle electrified the final home crowd of the year with a 92 yard kickoff return for the third Irish score and Crotty bumped over from the two with the fourth TD.

Ron Toth started the scoring parade with a two yard burst early in the first quarter and a George Izo to Dick Prendergast aerial-tally mercifully ended it seconds before the final gun.

It was a long day for the Trojans. They were down 13-0 before they converted an Irish fumble into their first score and were losing 26-6 before they pushed over for their last touchdown.

MUSTANGS SUCCOMB TO IRISH POWER-LADEN OFFENSE

Dallas, Tex., Dec. 7—Unleashing a wild offensive attack that was aided by six SMU mistakes, Notre Dame rolled up its highest point total of the past ten years in crushing Southern Methodist, 54-21, today in the Cotton Bowl.

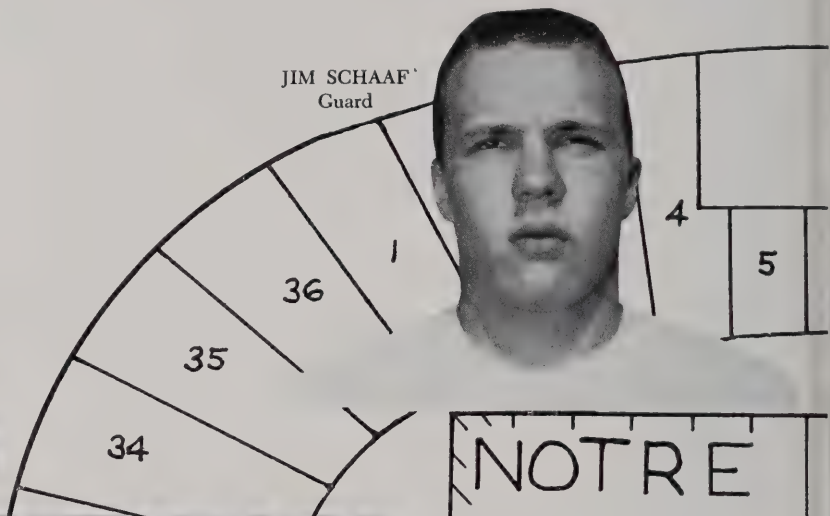

After the Mustangs scored a quick touchdown on a Meredith pass, the Irish staged a nine minute blitz during which they tallied four times. Chuck Lima scored first on a two yard plunge and was followed by Bob Williams, who pushed across twice, on quarterback sneaks of three and four yards. Pat Doyle then scampered 45 yards to the goal to give the Irish a 28-7 lead. Here, in the last seconds of the first half, the Notre Dame scoring spree was temporarily interrupted as Jim Welch plunged a yard for the second Mustang score.

But as the third period opened, Doyle went on another touchdown jaunt, this time 18 yards. Vainly trying to keep the pace, SMU countered again, but the Irish couldn't be stopped. Soon fullback Ron Toth crashed the Mustang

The Coach

A football coach's job is discouragingly hard, especially when his team isn't winning. Terry Brennan was particularly faced with this problem since Notre Dame is never expected to have a bad season. His great rebuilding job in 1955 seemed to be completely forgotten after 1956, a difficult year in which besides having to depend on untried sophomores, many injuries hampered his team. Tabbed as the "man on the hot seat" at the start of the 1957 season, Terry cooled off both that seat and his critics by leading the Irish to a 7-3 record in their most crucial season. Given a year to work with his 1956 sophomores, his sound coaching formed them into a determined and successful team.

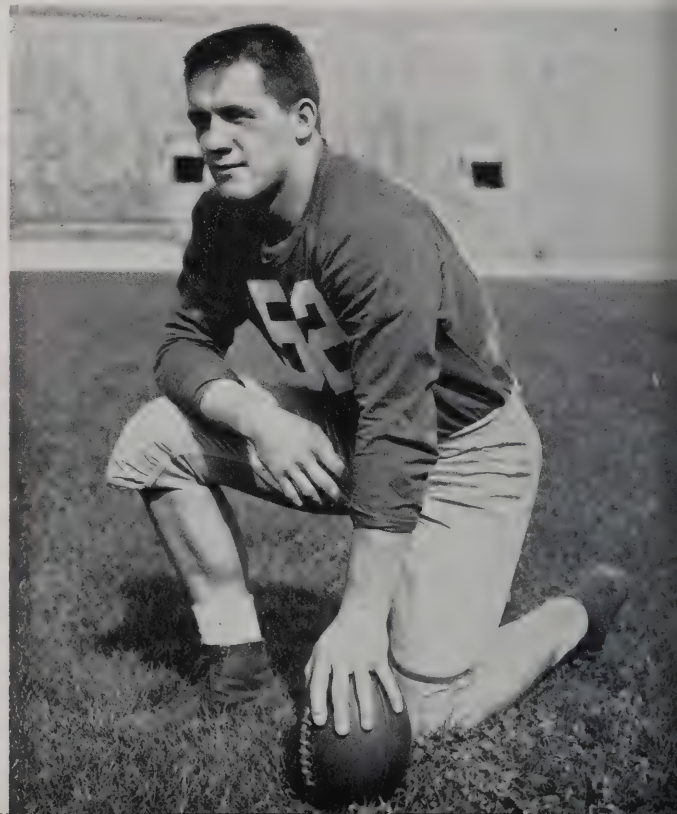

Aides Walsh, Crimmins, Stram, Fischer, Witucki, and Zilly pose with Coach Brennan.

... And His Staff

Helping Brennan guide Notre Dame back to football success were the highly talented and hard working, but unheralded Irish assistant coaches. Bill Fischer completed his fourth year as varsity line coach, Bill Walsh tutored the centers for the third straight year, and Jack Zilly handled the ends for the second year in a row. Two new faces, those of Bernie Crimmins and Henry Stram, joined three year veteran Bernie Witucki in guiding the backs. All are former Irish players with the exception of Stram who spent his playing days at Purdue.

Co-Captains

Dick Prendergast, a 21-year-old senior end from Homewood, Ill., and Ed Sullivan, a 22-year-old senior center and line-backer from McKeesport, Pa., were chosen as co-captains of the 1957 Fighting Irish football team. Although Sully saw only limited action due to injuries, both he and Dick, known chiefly for his defensive work, proved to be inspirational leaders and fine captains.

or the realization that this was their first real test, the Irish found themselves. A beaten team going into the last 16 minutes, Notre Dame came back with the vehemence of old . . . a long run, a sustained march, a forced break, and a seemingly impossible victory. The challenge to spirit had been met . . . and conquered.

The second stage: Pittsburgh, Navy, and Michigan State. The challenge appeared to be too great. They had had their moments of jubilation. It was the same old team after all. They failed their big tests. Too bad, it looked like they were going to conquer the challenge.

But confidence, desire, and spirit yet remained. The thud heard throughout the country on November 16 was not only the collapse of the Sooner victory wagon but also the dropping of the shackles that the Irish players had worn as the "goats of '56." They were now the "heroes of '57." They could not have played a finer game at a finer moment. Playing to perfection as a unit, displaying poise and power, spirit and determination, they had beaten the best. The challenge to prestige had been met . . . and it, too, was conquered.

The final stage: Iowa, Southern Cal and Southern Methodist; seven and three. They looked good in defeat, superb in resounding victory. The unbelievable had been done. The second guessers had been humiliated. The personal challenges had been conquered.

The total challenge had been met with a response shouldered by the team, the coach, and the famous Notre Dame spirit. And just as the challenge was total, so was the conquest. The players were hailed as the Comeback Team of the Year; Terry Brennan was second only to one as Coach of the Year; and the name of Notre Dame once again shone brilliantly on the football horizon.

Fieldgoals against Army or touchdowns against Oklahoma all spelled the same during the 1957 football season—COMEBACK.

Record-breakers!

Cagers winningest in history

Enroute from an unsteady beginning to a blazing finish, Notre Dame's 1957-'58 basketball team tumbled records, both team and individual, copped one tournament, reached the quarter finals of another, and became the winningest team in the school's history, winding up with a 24-5 record.

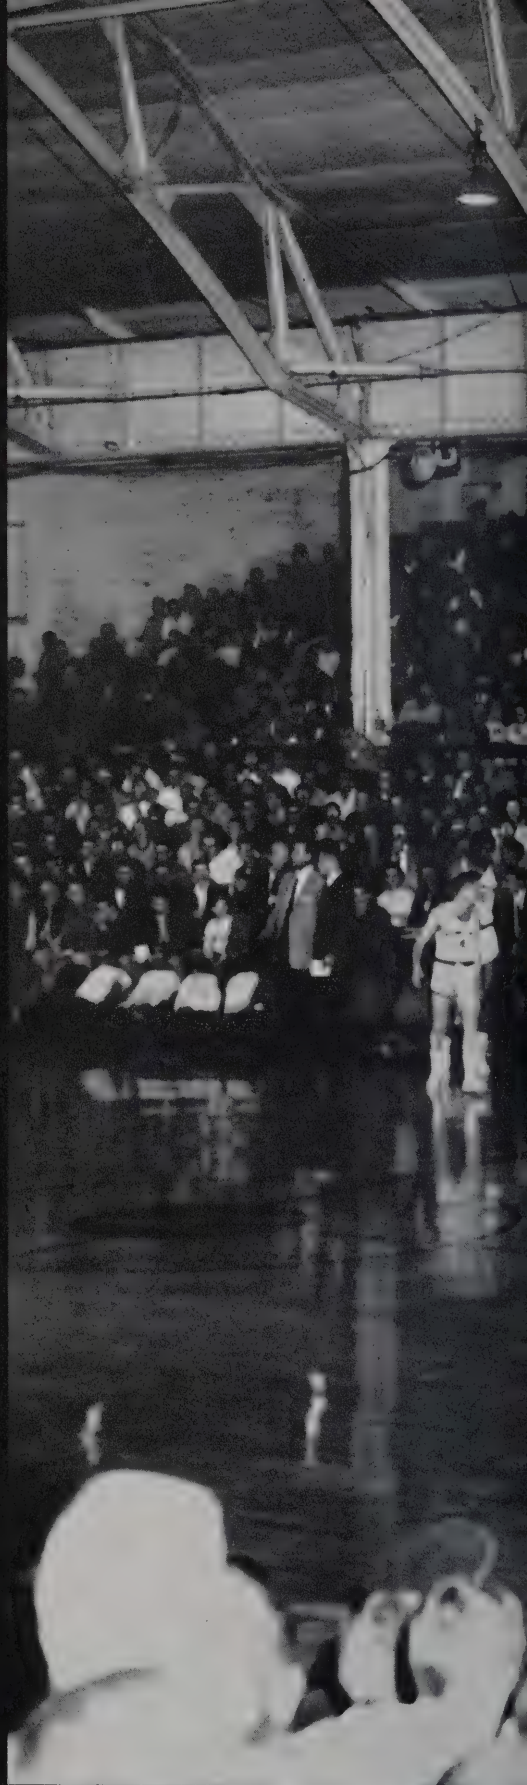

Beginning as a sound ball club, they improved steadily to a peak of proficiency heretofore unknown in Notre Dame basketball laurels, highlighted by a decisive victory over North Carolina's defending national champs. In regular season play they finished victorious in their last ten games and in eighteen of their final twenty. In achieving these heights they challenged all comers, besting five of six Big Ten rivals, scourging top-ranked competition from the East, surpassing formidable opposition from all over the nation, and losing only to those who were just a little bit tougher on that given evening. For these conquests they were ranked seventh in the national standings by the Associated press, eighth by the United Press.

In the midst of the Christmas holidays the Irish were involved in the first of their tournaments. It was the Hoosier Classic, and at its end they reigned as champions. And on into the NCAA at the end of the season, up to the regional finals did the Irish winning ways continue. It was only then that the curtain fell; for in a relentless barrage by accurate Kentucky basketeers and the season came to its close.

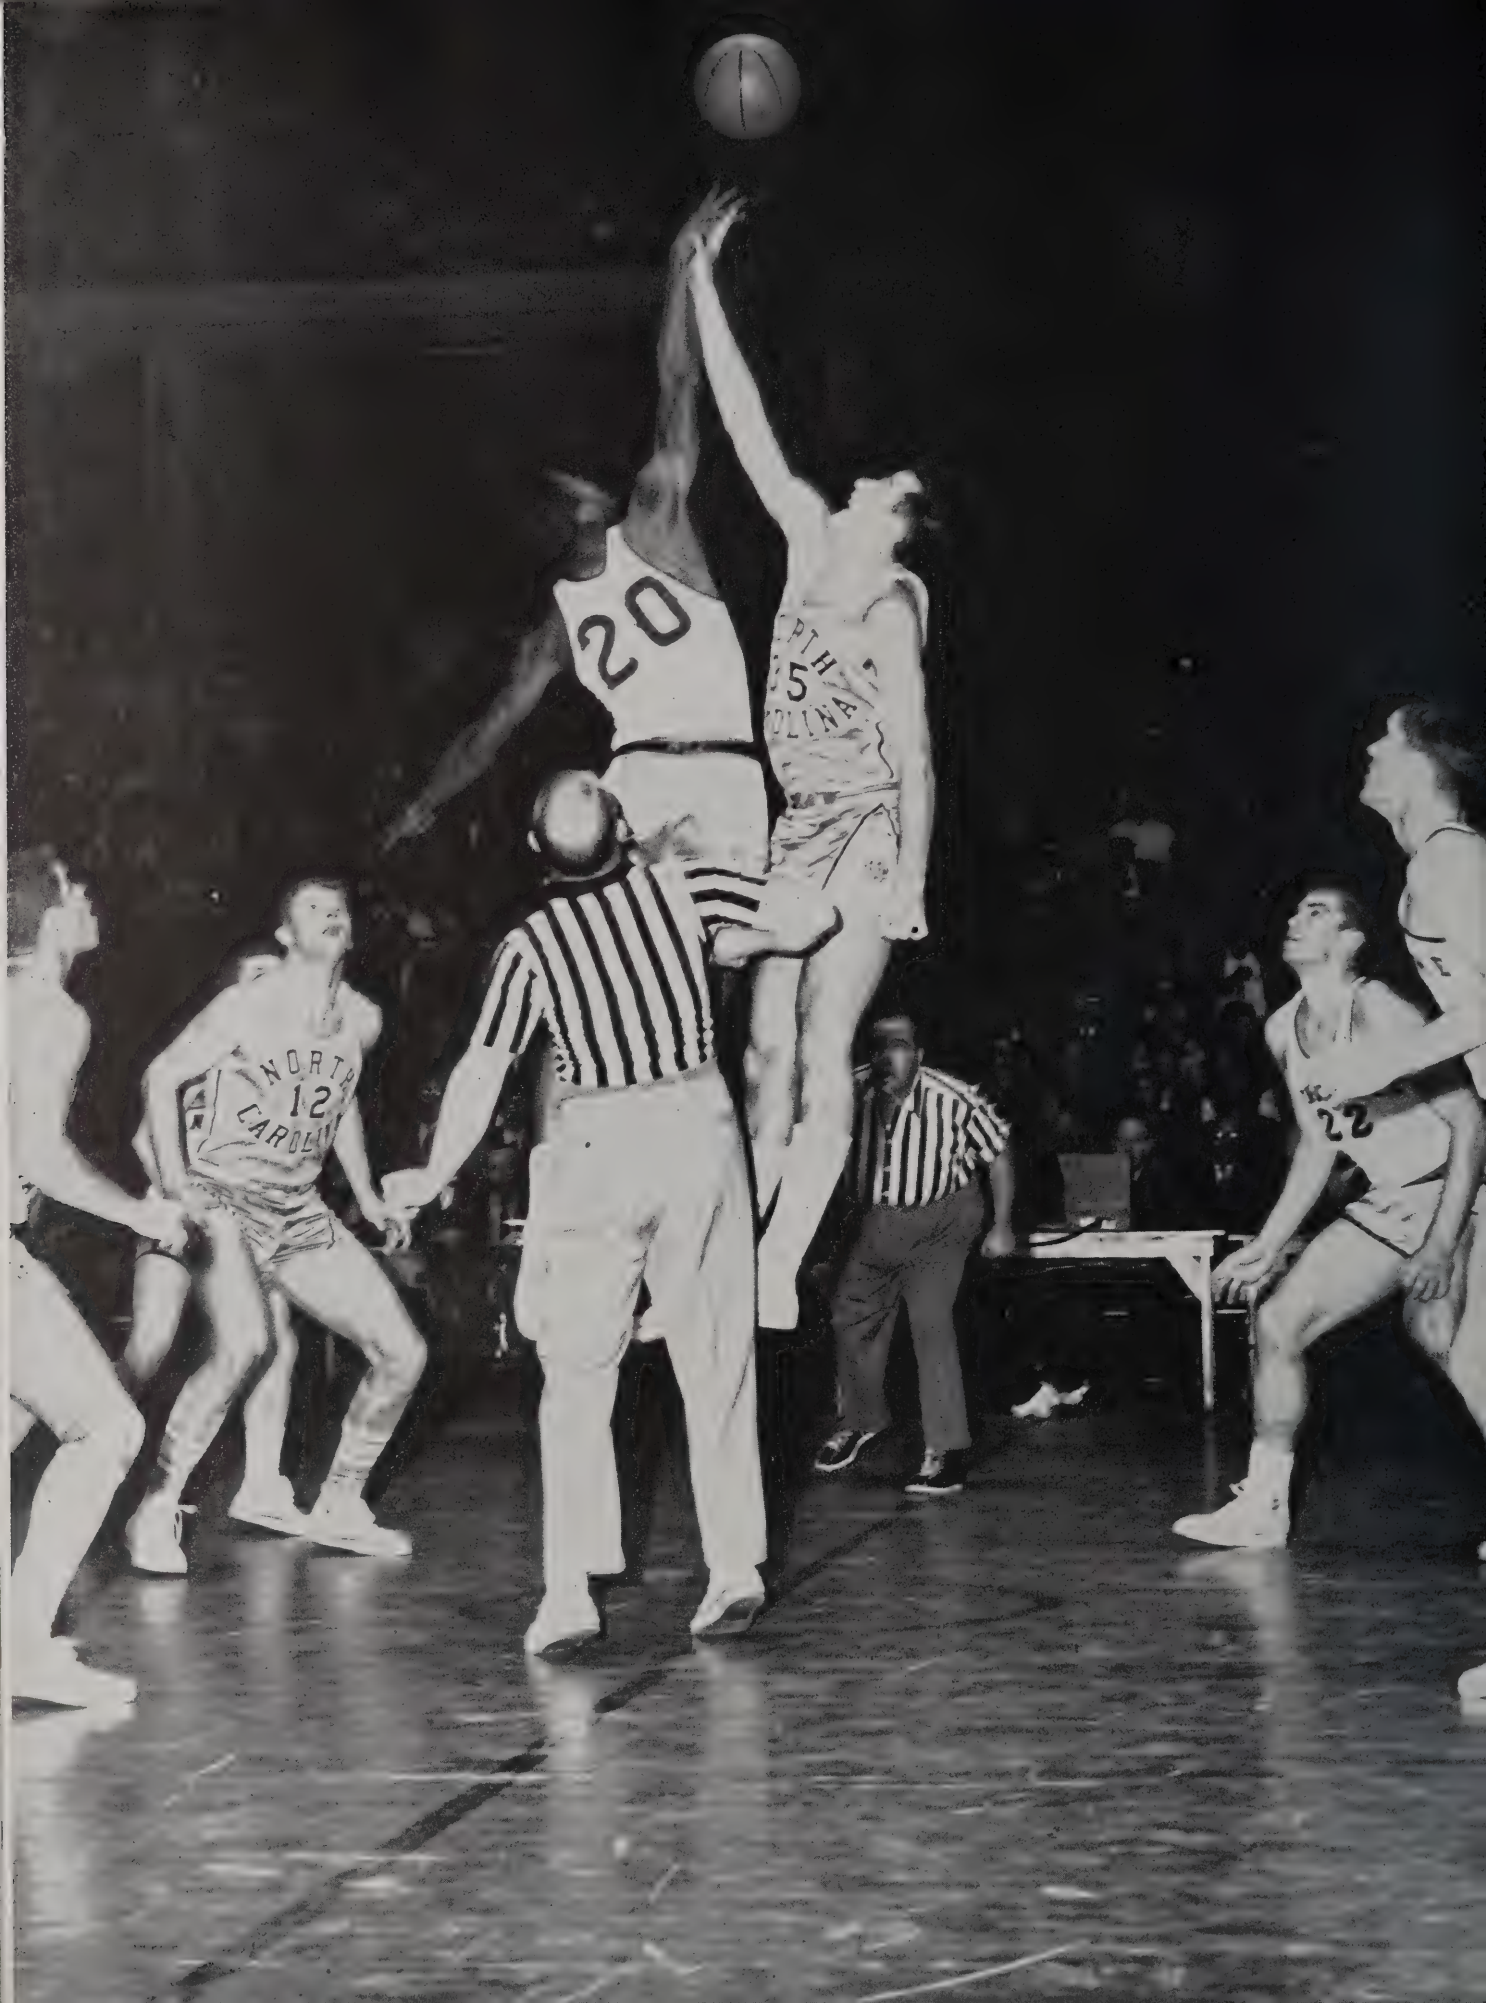

And close though it did, yet it was brilliantly successful. This had been a team of record-breakers, long to live in the annals of Notre Dame basketball. There were 29 games in all, typing the mark for a season's competition. There were 106 points scored against Marquette, the first time a Notre Dame squad scored more than one hundred points in one game. There were 2,374 points scored during the season, eclipsing the former record by ten.

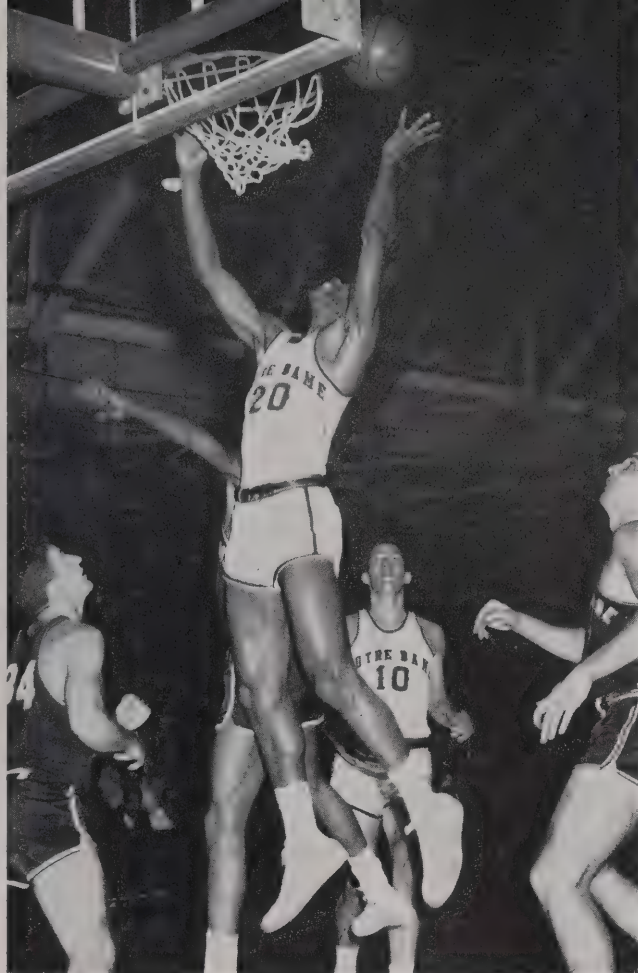

And there were individual honors. Tom Hawkins became Notre Dame's highest scorer ever, and John McCarthy became the fifth highest. Bob Devine started in 81 consecutive games over a three-year period. Gene Duffy was selected to the small players' All-America. Hawkins made the AP and UP All-Americans and was a unanimous selection for the All-Tourney NCAA team in the mid-East playoffs.

It was a great year.

This junior was regarded as the squad's handy-man, providing strong bench support for any front-line positions. He carried the respectable average of thirteen points per game in twenty-six contests.

COACH JOHNNY JORDAN

Notre Dame's basketball coach for the last seven years, Johnny Jordan, congratulated by Coach Frank McGuire, is all smiles after his victory over North Carolina. This was, perhaps, the high spot of the season, defeating last year's national champions, by a count of 89-70.

Piloting the team to a Hoosier Championship and NCAA quarter-finals, Coach Jordan ended the season with a 24-5 record, the winningest in the school's history.

Thinclads Do Well

NCAA harrier champs; indoor undefeated

Both team and individual honors came by the tapes for the 1957-58 thinclads of Notre Dame. It was first an NCAA cross-country championship, then an undefeated indoor dual meet season highlighted by many individual performances, and finally the outdoor season which now gives indication of contributing further success to this year's track season at ND.

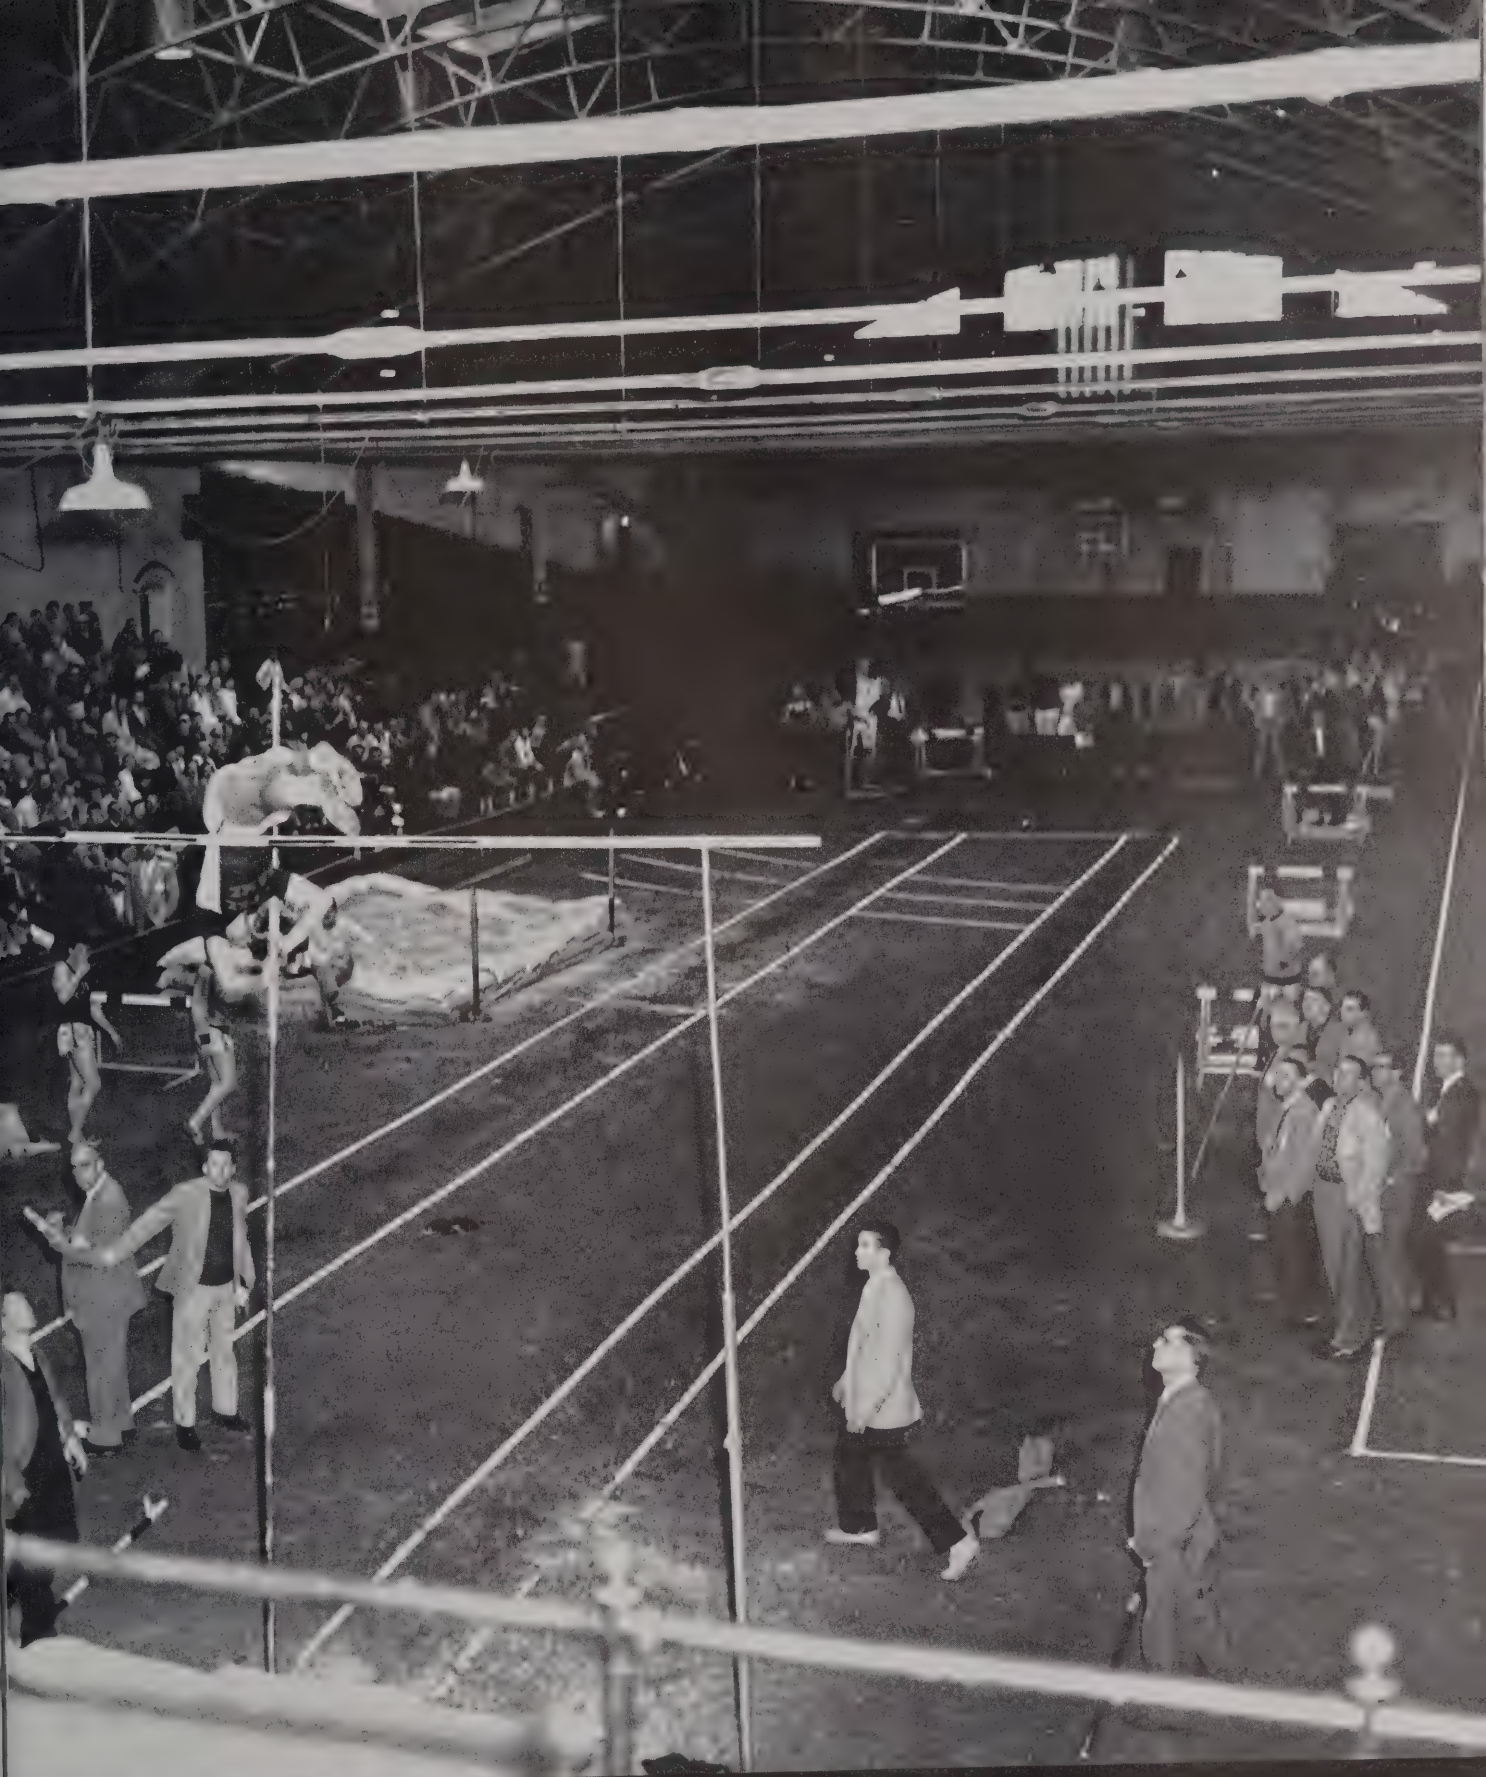

Led by harriers Monnelly and VandenBerg the cross-country team finished their season with a two and one dual meet record, a first place in the Indiana State and Central Collegiate Conference meets, a second place in the IC4A championships and finally by capturing the NCAA crown.

The regular indoor season of dual meets saw the Irish take a clean sweep of all opponents by defeating Missouri, Purdue and Iowa. Performing in this fine showing of all-around team balance was the mile relay team composed of Joe Foreman, Pat Reilly, Barclay Ewart, and Dale VandenBerg. This foursome's best showing was a 3:22.9 run at the CCC meet. In the shot put the Irish were led by Frank Geremia with a heave of 51¼ feet who later went on to win first place honors at the CCC indoor meet. Jack "of all trades" Cote performed in the pole vault (13 feet), high jump (six feet) and the broad jump (24 feet). Following Cote as a close second in the broad jump was senior Dan Faley whose best effort of the year was 23 feet 7¾ inches. Representing the Irish in the half mile was senior Dale VandenBerg who was clocked at a fast 1:51.4. In the mile event it was Dick DiCamillo who bested a time of 4:14.1. Joe Foreman and Barclay Ewart set the pace in the 440-yard run with 50.0 and 50.5 respectively. Running the high and low 60-yard hurdles was Steve Dornbach who recorded times of :06.9 for the low and :07.4 for the high hurdles. And in the 60-yard dash Coach Alex Wilson sent his one-two punch of Foreman (:06.4) and Pete Salsich (:06.5).

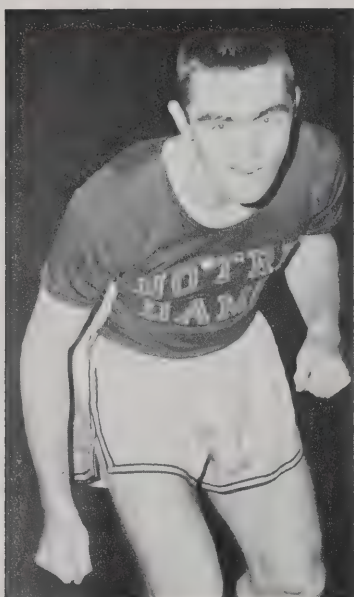

A major limitation to Irish track hopes was the injury of Captain Aubrey Lewis. Lewis, NCAA record holder in the 400-meter hurdles and third place finisher in the 220-yard low hurdles in last year's NCAA meet, had a holdover injury to his ankle from the football season and missed all the indoor season.

But under the fine coaching of Alex Wilson, in his eighth season as head coach of his alma mater's track squad, his success as one of the country's top track coaches was shown again by the many team and individual honors compiled by the Irish tracksters.

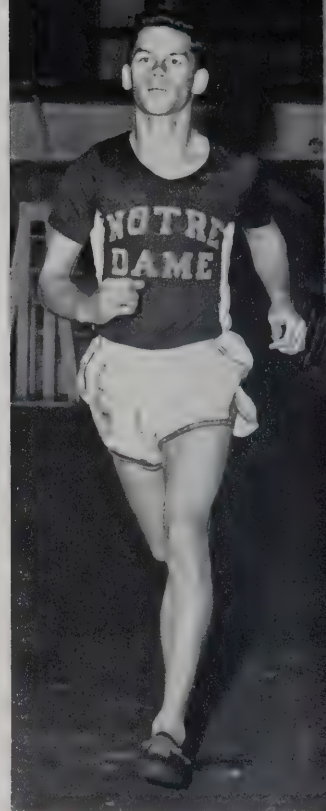

Cross-Country Team Captures NCAA Title

Ed Monnelly, winner of all but two of the cross-country meets this year, ran the mile in 4:19.1 and the four mile trek in 20:21.

Dale Vandenberg captained the cross-country team to a CCC and NCAA team championships. Running the half mile in 1:51.4, he won two meets this year.

Dave Cotton, third ranked Irish cinderman, finished second for Notre Dame in NCAA.

Prospects: Fair

Rebuilding task ahead of Coach Kline

The loss of two-time All-American catcher Elmer Kohorst plus the entire front line infield through graduation; the return of but six monogram winners from 1957's NCAA College World Series 4th place team plus a noted absence of depth and experience; a schedule of top Big Ten opponents plus leading Mid-West independents, renders the 1958 Irish baseball picture rather hazy. As a result, Jake Kline, in his 25th year as head coach has virtually an entire rebuilding task confronting him.

The breakdown, position by position, after spring conditioning workouts in the fieldhouse and intrasquad games at Cartier Field, shapes up as follows: The outfield, boasting Captain Bob Senecal, last year's leader in RBIs; Gene Duffy, leader in home runs, triples and total hits; and Bob Giarrantano, a .304 slugger in 1957, has the only solid block of veterans. Using these men as the bulwarks, Coach Kline suggests an opening day infield lineup to read: Jim Morris, last year's batting champion (.386), at 1st base. Frank Finnegan, Joe Geneser and John Carretta respectively at 2nd, short and 3rd, where none have had any previous college experience. Plugging the gap behind the plate will be Ed Wojcik who is also playing his first season of college ball. The pitching chore will rest mainly upon the shoulders of Chuck Symeon who last year posted a 1.30 ERA in winning five of six decisions. But he should receive help from monogram winner John Connors and top sophomores Frank Carpin, a left hander, Jim Hannan, a speedball artist, and Charles Scrivanik, a spot pitcher.

The first exam for this tentative lineup will come by way of an Easter vacation swing to the Florida State Tournament, where ball clubs from Wisconsin, West Virginia and Florida State will afford opposition. Come mid-April the Klinemen will return to Cartier Field for a final brush-up and more lineup juggling if necessary. And then the long trudge down the road of regular season play shall commence against Purdue.

After the season opener contests against Indiana, Ohio U., Michigan and Wabash complete the April schedule. In May the Irish face Indiana, Central Michigan, Northwestern, Michigan State, Glenview Navy, Wisconsin and Valparaiso. And the 1958 season then closes with games against Northwestern, Western Michigan and Michigan State.

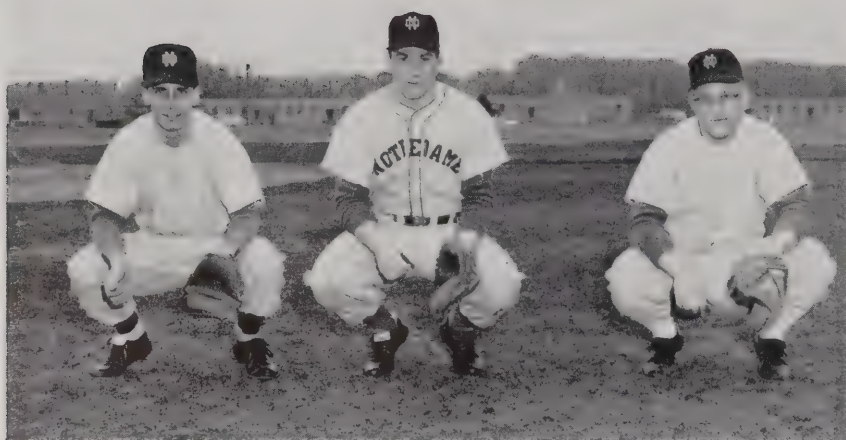

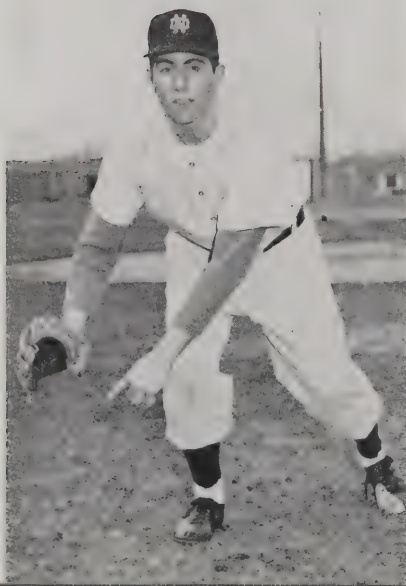

The 1958 Irish Baseball Team

Catchers

Filling the shoes of the graduated, two-time All-American catcher Elmer Kohorst this year, Martin Deignan, Bob Lotti, and John Merlock have a job cut out for them. As the Irish mainstay behind the plate, these men are expected to see a lot of action this year.

Pitchers

The heavy responsibility of the pitching chores of the season are expected to fall on sophomore left-hander Frank Carpin and veteran righty Charles Symeon. Symeon won five and lost one last season and compiled an ERA of 1.30.

Coach and Captain

Beginning his 25th season as head baseball coach at his alma mater, Jake Kline was faced with the problem of an inexperienced team. Captain Bob Senecal, two year outfield veteran and last year's RBI leader, was one of the few returning monogram winners.

Infielders

Hopefuls for filling the inner defense include catcher Ed Wojcik, and infielders John Carretta, Frank Finnegan, Joe Geneser, Dick Selcer, and Jim Morris.

Outfielders

Carrying the brunt of the stickwork and patrolling the pastures for the Irish will be Mike Graney, Gene Duffy, Bill Reisert, Bob Broemmell, Bud Trapp, and Bob Giarratano.

Winning Seasons

Minors do well: complete Irish scene

Lost in the whirl of the football and basketball successes, the so-called minor sports enjoyed winning seasons which rounded out one of Notre Dame's finest sports years.

The fencing team rolled to its fourth undefeated season in history and established a new ND consecutive victory mark. The swordsmen humbled all sixteen foes, which included NCAA and Big Ten champion Illinois and many of the other top teams from the mid-West. Coupled with three straight wins at the close of last year, the victory streak is now at 19, two better than the old mark established in 1952 and '53 and tied in 1955 and '56.

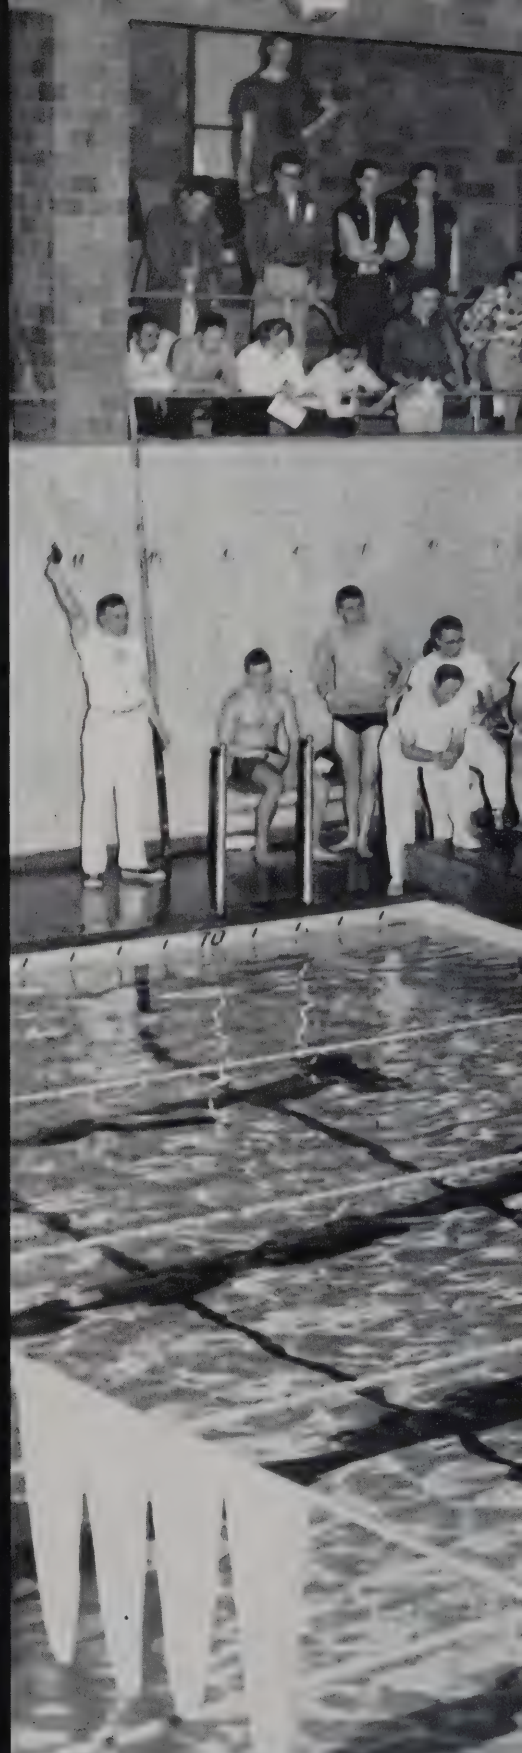

After a dismal year in 1957, the wrestling team rebounded to a 7-2 season and a fourth place finish in the Wheaton Invitational meet. The swimming club also kept things alive during the winter months by posting a 6-5 mark for their third straight winning season in as many years of existence. The mermen notched second place in the Midwest Invitational against fourteen teams and third place in the Loyola Relays.

The sailing club turned in fine performances in the winter regattas, sweeping the Purdue and Notre Dame meets, and finishing well up in other regional tests. An equally successful spring season would rank the club among the top five in the country.

The bowling team rolled to a third place finish in the mid-West Intercollege Bowling League and the gymnastics team had a good outlook before its schedule was cancelled due to the lack of a coach.

Once again the Bengal Bouts provided three nights of the finest amateur boxing. Primed by many of last years' champions and runners-up, the Bouts featured exciting slugfests, some of which ended via the KO route, and interesting boxing matches, which depended more on ring skill.

The prospects for the spring minors, golf and tennis, showed no sign of a weak link in the chain. The golf team will be staffed by all returning lettermen and the netmen will have a solid core of last year's squad back.

FENCING

Fencers Go 16-0 On Team Depth

Overall team strength gave to Notre Dame fencing this year its fourth undefeated season and to Coach Walter Langford his first unmarred campaign in this his twelfth year as headcoach. Among the 16 straight victories were seven over Big Ten opponents including two against NCAA and Big Ten champion Illinois.

The fencing team, the midwest's second best in 1957, opened its 1958 season with an 18-9 victory over the University of Detroit. After defeating Illinois, Cincinnati, and Iowa, the Irish nosed out a tough Buffalo team 14-13. Wins over Chicago, Wayne State, Indiana Tech and Case rounded out the season.

Capturing individual honors for the sixth place Irish in the NCAA Tournament were Ron Farrow, third in epee, Jim Russomano, fourth place in foil, and Captain Dick Fagon who took 14th in sabre.

Captain and number one sabre man is Dick Fagon who recorded 31 wins while losing only 11 matches.

Members of the winningest weapons team are Jim Jock (33-7), John Kearns (13-9) and Ron Farrow (32-6).

Coach Walter Langford directs the team to its first undefeated season during his twelve years as head coach.

WRESTLING

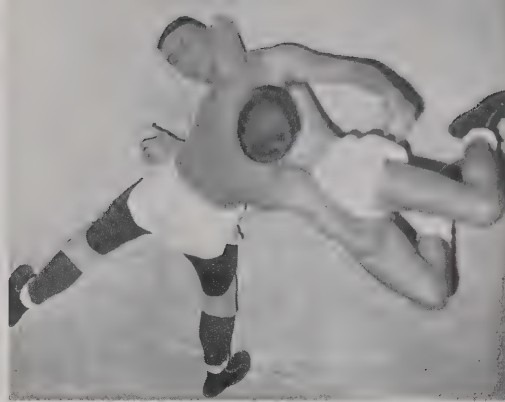

Grapplers Enjoy Successful Season

College wrestling, the sport which pits men of equal weight against each other to determine the more skillful, is on the rise on an intercollegiate basis. Quite unlike professional wrestling, its most important elements are a knowledge of basic moves and their counter-moves, agility, speed, balance, endurance and strength.

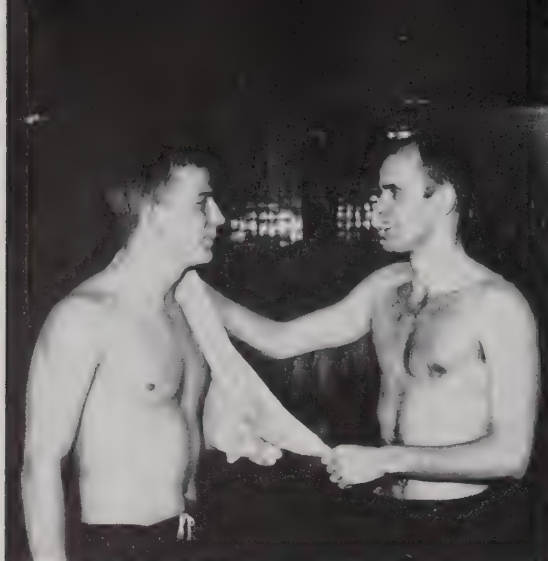

Here at Notre Dame, wrestling achieved varsity status three years ago. The squad of 1957-'58, coached by Tom Fallon and captained by Bob Pivonka, chalked up a seven victory—two defeat season. In doing so, the matmen racked up a winning streak of six consecutive matches, beginning with an opening 18-11 victory over Findlay College and including two shutouts. They placed fourth, tying Illinois Normal, in the annual Wheaton Invitational Tournament.

The team make-up consists of eight weight classifications: 123, 130, 137, 147, 157, 167, 177 pounds and heavyweight. Coach Fallon speaks optimistically of the future, noting he loses only five men through graduation and has a group of highly prospective juniors and sophomores returning next winter.

Paul Zika and Jim Garrity position themselves for the 200 yard backstroke while recording times of 2:28 and 2:25 accordingly.

In their third year as Irish mermen are 220 (time, 2:22) and 440 (time, 5:22) freestyler Tom Londrigan and 200 (time, 2:45) yard breaststroker George May.

SWIMMING

Gilmen Look Good In Third Year

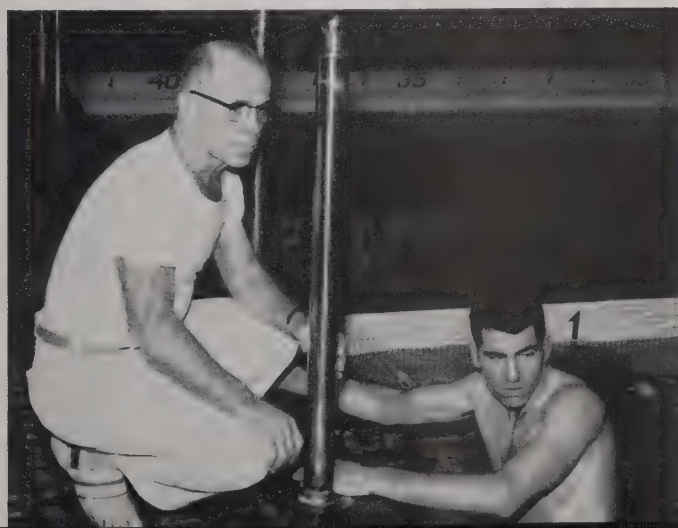

Against toughest opposition yet posed, Notre Dame's Swimming Club chalked up its third victorious season in as many year's competition. Led by few seniors and many freshmen the mermen compiled a six win-five defeat record while taking second against 14 teams in the Midwest Invitational Meet and third place in the Loyola University Relays.

The old front line of Londrigan, May, Garrity and Nagle were given added strength this year with sophomore diver Paul Chestnut and fleet group of freshmen sprinters composed of Mahaney, Witchger, Cronin, and Haske. But no group will concede success without attributing much of it to their coach. To this young swimming club was given that necessary training and encouragement by Coach Gil Burdick and team moderator Father Robert Pelton, C.S.C.

All meets were based on competition in a medley relay, several distance freestyle events, diving backstroke, breaststroke, butterfly, and a freestyle relay.

Coach Burdick in scheduling the same opponents for 1958-'59 competition, asserts prospects for another successful season are bright, with no front line swimmers being lost through graduation. Junior captain Dick Nagel views the achievement of varsity status next year with monograms being awarded as the club's major goal.

Looking on toward their third straight winning season are Coach Gil Burdick and Captain Dick Nagle.

TENNIS

Young Team Undefeated Early In Season

Indications of a successful year for a young Irish tennis team have presented themselves in the way of five victories and no losses. In the lone tournament play of the now-young season the netmen placed second in the Chicago Collegiate Indoor Tournament.

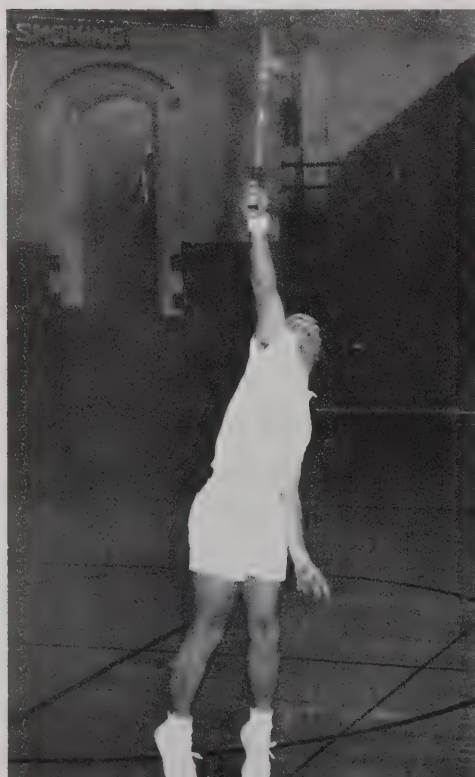

Number one man for the Irish this year is junior Max

Brown, currently ranked 17th in the country's amateur standings.

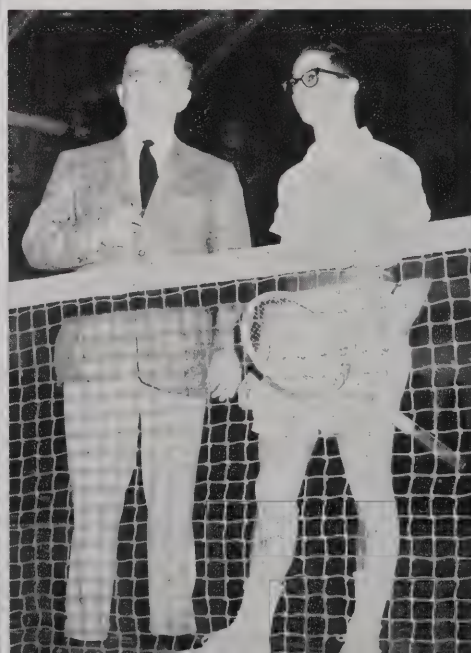

The remainder of the singles team has Captain Ron Schoenberg as the number two man, Sergio Garza in third position, and Hector Cabello and Chuck Vanoncini in fourth and fifth notch.

In the doubles Brown and Schoenberg are the number one team while Charlie Stephens and Vanoncini form the number two combination.

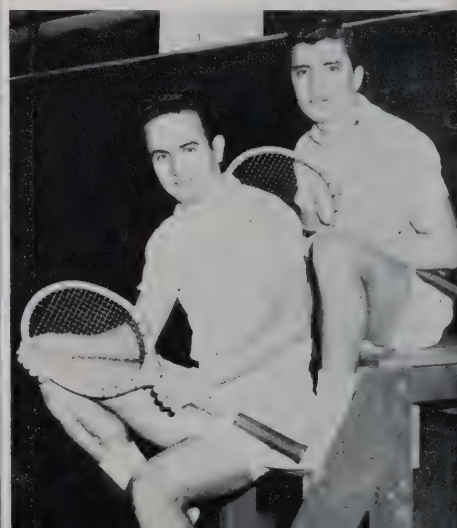

Those teams which the Irish will face during the remainder of the season will be Michigan State, Northwestern, Western Michigan, Purdue, Indiana, and Iowa.

Looking forward to another power-loaded schedule is Coach Tom Fallon and Captain Ron Schoenberg.

This doubles combination of Hector Cabello and Sergio Garza is also ND's third and fourth men in singles competition.

GOLF

Outlook Bright For Irish Linksmen

The golf team has the best possible prospects for 1958, as the first team is composed entirely of returning monogram men. Besides co-captains Joe Grace and Charlie Thurn, the number one unit includes Michigan Amateur Champ Lloyd Syron, and University-wide champ Tom Garside. Backing up this group and presenting fine prospects for the future are five good juniors and four excellent sophomores. Golf Coach Father George Holderith, C.S.C., is very enthusiastic about the outlook for the season, but acknowledges that competition will be strong, especially from the eight Big Ten schools Notre Dame faces. The team plays five triangular matches between April 19 and May 19.

BOWLING

Keglers Finish 3rd In Midwest League

The 1958 Bowling Team finished third among the six teams in the Midwest Intercollegiate Bowling League. The league scores comprehensively, the total points for all matches being added to determine the championship. The Irish amassed a total of 20.5 points to finish behind Loyola and DePaul, the half being a tie. Needing only seven points out of eleven in their last match of the season against Loyola to clinch second place, the rollers were victims of that nemesis of all athletes, an off day.

Notre Dame's bowlers gave a good accounting of themselves this year with Captain Joe Grace leading the team with a game average of 184.5. Following close behind were Tom Jablonski with 180, Hank DeCalume 177, Lew Solomon 176, Virg Minnick 174, Jim Trino 172 and John Curran 171. The team average for 200 games was 177.8. High game for Notre Dame was held by DeCalume with 247. Jablonski bowled the highest five game series with 1043.

Coach "Speed" Sheehan's boys still face the 10th annual tournament at St. Joseph's, Collegeville, Indiana, in April where league honors will be decided.

Members of the 1958 Bowling Team are: Captain Joe Grace, Virg Minnick, Tom Jablonski, John Curran, Lew Solomon, Hank DeCalume, and Jim Trino.

GYMNASTICS

Need For Coach Unanswered; Schedule Cancelled

The Notre Dame Gymnastics Club, which held fine prospects at the beginning of the winter, ran into one insurmountable problem: the inability to find a coach. Because of this, their previously approved schedule was cancelled. However, the group continued to practice under the direction of the Gymnastics Club president, Jim Brunot. Backing him in his effort to keep the club together were Vice-President Ed Lahey,

Secretary Bill Anderson, and Treasurer Ray Williams.

Although next year's gymnastics future is still uncertain, there is a firm foundation for a good team in returning men Ed Lahey, Rog Brunelli, Wes Newmyer and John Colisk. These men have the makings of going far if they have a coach to give them the expert guidance that this sport of precision demands.

Fall Season Brings Regatta Honors To Irish Skippers

First Row: Lee Gorman (vice commodore), Mickey Pavia (fleet captain), Dan Schuster (secretary), Joe Boland (commodore) and Dick Kienast (treasurer). Second Row: John Kroha, Denny McGovern, Bob Mathews, Kevin Curran, Joe Goetz, John Gaffney, Jack Devanney, and Terry Hutton. Third Row: Tim Rice, Ron Meissner, and Lou Morgon.

Consistent with Notre Dame Sailing Teams of the past, this year's crew of skippers made another excellent showing of skillful sailing and intelligent tactics. In Fall competition Notre Dame got off to a mediocre start by placing fourth out of nine at the Wayne State Invitational. However, led by senior skippers Lou Morgon, Ron Meissner, Tim Rice, Bernie D'Almedia and Ray Nelson the Irish came on strong to sweep all honors at the Purdue Regatta and later to win her own regatta at Eagle Lake. In their fourth and final encounter Notre Dame placed third out of the twelve top colleges representing both the Midwest and the East in Chicago's Belmont Harbor.

The Spring sailing season should prove equally as successful as once again the Irish skippers meet many of the top-ranking sailing teams in the country.

Boland and Shulsen Receive Bengal Awards

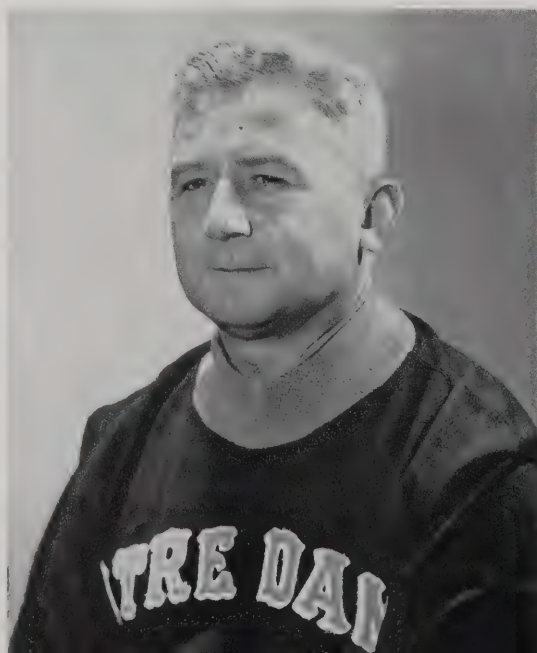

The 27th annual Bengal Bouts, often termed college boxing's most outstanding fights, were held in the field-house on March 24th, 26th and 28th. The Bengals, so called because their proceeds are sent to the Bengal Missions in India, have been sponsored by the Notre Dame Knights of Columbus since 1946.

Promoter Jerry Wells and his committee this year named Joe Boland, Notre Dame Football Network sports announcer, as the recipient of "The Man Who Has Contributed Most to Boxing in the Past Year" Award. In past years this annual award has been given to such other well-known figures as Carmen Basilio and Rocky Marciano.

The bout of the evening saw heavyweight Dick Shulsen knockout Norm Odyniec in 1:42 of the first round. Shulsen was later given the trophy as the outstanding Bengal Boxer.

Preliminary to the bouts Coach Dominic "Nappy" Napolitano selected fighters who showed most promise as being crowd pleasers. His judgment was based upon physical condition, knowledge of boxing fundamentals and uniform weight pairings. The bouts themselves consisted of three two-minute rounds in eight weight divisions from 120 lbs. to heavyweight.

All of the boxers are under the careful training and guidance of Dominic "Nappy" Napolitano.

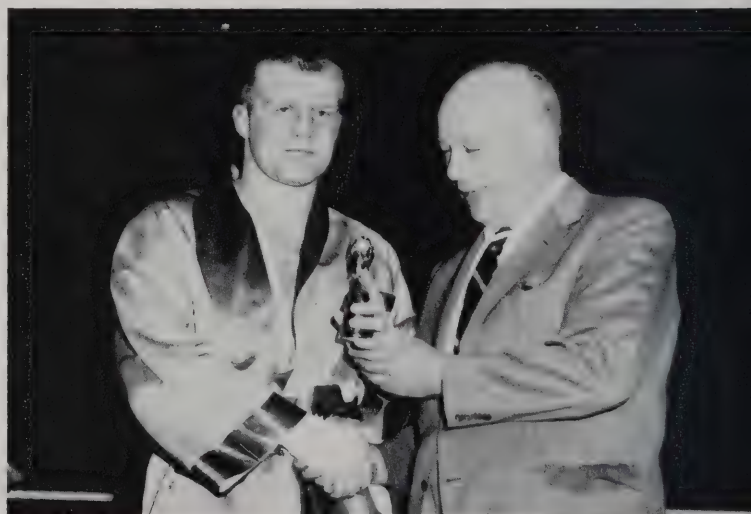

Promoter Jerry Wells presents to Joe Boland "The Man Who Has Contributed Most to Boxing in the Past Year" Award.

Stanford Hall Captures Campus Football Title

Stanford Hall started its football history with an outstanding championship team. Dominating the East League, they went undefeated and unscored upon in all their games, however, being forced into a 0-0 tie by third ranked Breen-Phillips. They captured the championship by dominating Off-Campus 13-0, keeping the western champions from penetrating their 45 yard line. Stanford showed a well-balanced attack, scoring once on pass plays and again on a long ground drive. The team played well with Ed Cornelia and Al Chonko shining on offense and Jerry Hofacre and Tom Brinkworth standing forth on defense.

It was definitely a case of the have and the have-nots in the East League where Keenan (5-1-0) and B-P (4-1-1) were right up there in back of Stanford. Zahm (2-4-0), St. Edwards, Farley, and Cavanaugh (all 1-5) were their targets.

The West League was a different story, with Alumni (4-0-3) and Off-Campus (5-1-1) settling for a tie, which Off-Campus won in the playoff. Most improved team of either league was Morrissey (5-2-0), who was dropped to third on a one point loss to Off-Campus. Dillon (4-2-0) also was strong. Holding up the other end of the statistics were Badin (3-2-3), who beat Off-Campus, Pangborn (1-4-2), and Lyons (1-6) and Howard (0-5-2) in a last place tie.

Windy City Boys Take Campus Basketball Honors

A consistently good game by the Chicago Campus Club made the difference as they ran down the speedy Milwaukee Club in the Interhall-All Campus Championships, 54-37. To reach the finals they in turn had eliminated the Minnesota and Cincinnati Clubs.

After the Chicago Club had built up a 23 to 13 advantage at half time, an explosive Milwaukee fast break and some deadly shooting narrowed the margin to seven, as both clubs piled up points. However, the Milwaukeeans couldn't maintain their own pace and soon their shooting percentage was beaten down. The Chicago Club went on to stuff 18 points in the third period. This cinched the game. High men for Chicago were DeNardo and Sullivan, with 21 and 10 points respectively while for Milwaukee, Just and Vida were high with 10 points apiece.

The Interhall League actually consists of geographical clubs and campus clubs besides the various hall teams. This year there were 84 teams in 16 leagues.

BREEN-PHILLIPS

B-P, as it is more familiarly referred to, might be designated the hall of athletes. For in it are located the offices of head football coach, Terry Brennan, and his assistants. By virtue of its own location, next to the field house and behind the outdoor basketball courts, its residents quickly redeveloped athletic skills which had been partially lost through the relaxations of summer. Thus rejuvenated, they launched with fervor into a full, satisfying freshman year, guided by the popular Father Glen Boarman, C.S.C. The three hundred and thirty five men of B-P showed their merit in barely failing to capture first place in the inter-hall display competition of homecoming weekend.

CAVANAUGH

Housing the class chaplain, Father Daniel O'Neil, C.S.C., Cavanaugh soon became the destination of all troubled freshmen, upon their arrival at Notre Dame. Its unique location, directly behind the Huddle, provided the "Cavmen" with the title of "biggest spenders on campus." Being situated next to the practice room of the marching band, the "Cavmen" were serenaded nightly, during the football season, by the strains of the famed Victory March played N.D. style. Fulfilling his third year of rectorship, Father Robert Pelton, C.S.C., discharged all administrative and disciplinary functions. This was Cavanaugh; home of three hundred and thirty aspiring young men.

FARLEY

The trek from Farley to the dining hall used to be something like 5,356 steps; the men from Farley had the healthiest legs on campus. But since the addition of the new dining hall, the dining hall's distance has been shaved to a mere 56 steps, and the Farleyites are spared that freezing hike on those sub-zero days. With Vetville located directly behind, the men of Farley amply supplied their share of baby-sitters; just another phase of college education. Presiding over this enthusiastic crew of first-year men is Father Joseph Haley, who also appreciates the new dining hall.

ZAHM

There has been, is, and always will be arguments over the correct pronunciation of Zahm; whether it is short or long "a." But to the three hundred and forty men calling this their "home away from home," this is immaterial. Their argument, rather, stems from more important elements, such as the discomfort involved in setting out for a distant, cold Rockne Memorial swimming pool at 8:30 every other morning. Supervised by Father Paul Fryberger, C.S.C., the men of Zahm, in the course of one year, learned well the necessities of discipline to communal living. Zahm may be said to be the heart of the freshman quad, being situated in the center of all freshman activity. Through all the trials of getting accustomed to college academic life. Zahmites stood out in achieving the least number of "pinkies" issued among the freshman halls in the first semester.

ST. EDWARD'S

Visitors to the campus, peeking curiously into the gloom between the Administration Building and Washington Hall, are often surprised by what they see there. In distinct contrast with the other four freshman halls, St. Edward's is almost as old as the University itself, but humbly nestles nearly out of sight, content and proud of its prominent place in Notre Dame history. St. Eds, as it is more commonly referred to, has an advantage in being located close to Washington Hall. For the student with low cash balances and dreams of a break in academic life, this offers a ready access to Saturday's first-run movies, a variety of Broadway plays, and the Concert and Lecture Series. The phrase "life under the Golden Dome" has a very literal meaning for the St. Eds troops, for that is exactly where they live.

LYONS

Famous for being the Sophomore residence for Dean's List students, Lyons again this year upheld this tradition, more than two-thirds of its tenants holding Dean's List honors. The distinct Lyons Arch, which overlooks St. Mary's Lake and in which rooms are coveted by prospective sophomores, is considered one of the most unique pieces of architecture at the University. Under the faithful vigilance of Father-Rector Carl Hager, C.S.C., the "Lyons Den" is the westernmost residence among sophomore halls. Holding true to Lyons' spirit, the men of Lyons captured first prize this fall in the annual homecoming decorations award competition.

MORRISSEY

The "Hotel," largest among sophomore quarters, is the center of activity along the "Gold Coast." Flanked on the west by Lyons and on the east by Howard, Morrissey is renowned for its excessively large amount of female visitors during the course of the football season. Some have explained the phenomenon by the presence of the "Rock" but a half-block distant. Boasting of Gothic Architecture, with its five-story tower rising between the east and west wings, Morrissey is one of few residence halls which can claim a fire place, though inoperative, in its lobby. Fr. Raymond Cour, C.S.C., in his first year as Rector, was responsible for the enforcement of peaceful co-existence among its more than four hundred occupants.

BADIN

Steeped in antiquity and revered in history, Badin was converted two years ago to a Sophomore Hall, the purpose being to allow each class to establish its traditional residency. Under the Rectorship of Fr. Edward Shea, C.S.C., Badinites have developed a spirit of close cooperation which permits them to become perennial contenders for championships in interhall athletics. Perhaps the most centrally located hall on campus, it is surrounded by the West dining hall, the outdoor basketball courts, Gilberts' Clothing Store and Brother Conan's Bookstore. A barbershop, a laundry and dry cleaning station, a modern study and TV lounge, a chapel, a "home" in which to gain a night's rest; that's Badin, all in one

STANFORD

A newcomer to the hallowed halls of Notre Dame, Stanford offers all the conveniences of home. Complete with bedspreads, curtains, lamps, and individual closets, Stanford's rooms are the most modern to be found in any college dormitory. Serving in their first year of residency, its tenants soon became the envy of the upperclassmen. Stanford's stalwarts claimed the unique position of sharing a chapel with the men of Keenan, the other hall erected for the 1957-'58 scholastic year. There was never a fear of Stanfordites becoming ill from the ordeals encountered in the nearby Biology Lab., as the student infirmary is but a short step away. Father George Bernard was rector of this hotel-like atmosphere.

HOWARD

Though not primarily known for its arch, nevertheless the fact remains that Howard Hall was the first to be constructed with such a feature. Its archway serves a dual purpose. First, as a shortcut between sophomore halls; second, as a separator of undergraduate students from Priests and Brothers housed on Howard's ground floor. Rectored by Fr. Charles Harris, C.S.C., a strong competitive spirit has prevailed between the men of Howard and of Lyons. After six years of supremacy, Howard's stalwarts finally were overpowered this year in interhall football. With the University's central library situated directly to the rear, an academic atmosphere is handily provided for its two hundred students.

SORIN

Sorin, myth of the founder of the University of Notre Dame, its four towers rising as if pinnacles in tribute to Egyptian gods, steeped for decades in tradition, is the home of 168 proud juniors. Sorinites may speak among themselves of the educated rats in the basement, the creaky floors and staircases, the cardboard-thin walls; but those who are not are labeled "blasphemous," should they speak in such irreverent manner. To the residents of Sorin, year after year, fall the rights and obligations of carrying on in truest fashion all the rituals expected of a Sorinite. And year after year, group after group, they have proven themselves worthy of the task. Fr. Thomas McDonagh, C.S.C., carries with him the distinction of being Sorin Hall's rector.

PANGBORN

Many times alumni of Pangborn Hall, who have passed on to their senior year, have been heard to exclaim, "I wish I were in Pangborn again." Perhaps this is due to the fact that melancholy has set in at thoughts of their pending graduation. More likely, however, it is due to the plush living quarters—the soft mattresses, picture windows, individual closets, large desks, fluorescent lights—provided for Pangborn's transients. These factors, together with the golf course being within a stone's throw, more than make up for the mile hike to classes in the Liberal Arts building. Though being but three years old, Pangborn is quickly establishing a tradition to rival those of the more antiquated residences. It is through Fr. Thomas Cady, C.S.C., that the job of rectorship has been discharged.

Keenan

There was some doubt last June, when "Domers" left the campus for summer vacation, as to the availability of Keenan Hall for the 1957-'58 academic year. However, upon their return in September, it was plainly evident that Keenan was ready for occupancy. Originally scheduled as a dormitory for freshmen students, Keenan enrolled among its number many juniors and seniors who had planned to live off-campus. This admixture of talent quickly established Keenan as a major threat in interhall athletic competition. Because of its home-like qualities—thick, soft mattresses; individual closets; fluorescent lighting—it has been designated as one of the three halls for residency of parents during graduation weekend. Fr. Michael Murphy, three year administrator of Farley Hall, was called upon for the Rectorship.

DILLON

Being the largest men's dormitory of all Catholic Colleges in the country, housing over 500 students, is a distinction in itself. But Dillon Hall holds several distinctions of local nature here on the campus. It is also the home of Fr. Charles Carey, Prefect of Religion. It is through his services that Dillon daily makes available Mass and Communion facilities until noon. And further, Dillon claims the honor of having had more participants in inter-hall athletics than any other hall. It is but a half-dozen yards from the side door to the old dining hall. This, however, may be a detraction as well as an asset, depending upon the individual students' appetites. The job of patrolling the elongated corridors and staircases falls to Fr. Lawrence Broestl, C.S.C., under the title "Rector."

ALUMNI

Built by the alumni, in tribute to the alumni. And so it is indeed fitting that this should be a hall of seniors, soon to enroll themselves among the many names of distinguished graduates of Notre Dame. Perhaps Alumni, with its commonplace ivy entwined along the walls, its ordinary chapel and its 315 residents, looks quite like any other hall. Upon a closer examination, however, and a glance cast skyward, one sees grotesque gargoyles protruding from each of the gothic towers. Most significant of all, in lending to its popularity among the seniors, is the fact that the bus stop is located only ten yards from the side door, a convenience often taken advantage of at 12:29 on Saturday nights. Fr. Edmund Murray, C.S.C., is the man called "Rector."

Rev. Edmund Murray, C.S.C.

WALSH

Walsh, the senior monument to the past, is the most strategically located hall on campus. It is surrounded by the postoffice, the book store and Gilbert's Campus Shop; and is less than three minutes' walk to any of the classroom buildings, the dining hall and Sacred Heart Church. It is the only hall which claims bathtubs in its private washrooms and bay windows in eight of its double rooms. For these, its residents have often been termed "Aristocrats." The home of the campus council of the Knights of Columbus, Walsh provides that organization with complete facilities for its bi-weekly meetings. Living up to the patterns set in bygone years, again this year the roster of Walsh listed the majority of B.M.O.C.'s of various extra-curricular activities. The Rectorship is in the capable hands of Fr. Ferdinand Brown, C.S.C.

Rev. Ferdinand Brown, C.S.C.

FISHER

Each of the seventeen campus residence halls may be called unique in at least one outstanding factor. But only the "Fishermen" can claim a certain uniqueness on three counts. Foremost among these is what may be termed a mixed occupancy. It is the only hall wherein reside graduate as well as undergraduate students. As a direct result of this, the second unique factor is brought about. Because of the proportionately greater amount of academic work load placed upon the graduate student, the majority being in Law school, all-night lights are granted. Thirdly, an uniqueness is founded in the preponderance of single rooms, this, too, being to lighten the burden upon the graduate student by elimination of the roommate problem. The Rector in charge of this admixture of academicians answers to the name of Fr. John Walsh, C.S.C.

VILLAGERS

Three happy villagers in the La Fortune Student Center's lobby "watching all the girls going by."

In the case of homesick students, they can always cast an envious eye at the student-residents of South Bend. Although this may increase their apathy toward being away from home, it is possible to move the whole family and thereby attain the status of a day-hop. Although they are few in number, their voice is still heard in campus matters by virtue of their own representative being elected to the student senate. A typical day in the life of a villager begins with Mass and Communion in Dillon Hall, continues with a full day of class and extra-curricular activities and ends with the trek to that real home atmosphere. It is for the latter that only the Villagers have a claim to the proverbial "no place like home."

OFF-CAMPUS

M. Carr, R. Henderson

This year saw the beginning of the end of a very special breed of Notre Dame man—the off-campus student. As rooms became available, many an O-C man found himself deprived of the privileges and relieved of the burdens of this nomadic existence. Often protesting, but to no avail, he returned to a life of bells, morning checks, dining-hall food, and lights out. Some escaped the purge, but these lived in constant fear of receiving that notice of eviction. To those who resist we say: accept the inevitable. To those who return we offer the convenience of nearby classrooms, and the fellowship of dormitory life. We welcome them back into the fold as their beloved off-camps life drifts toward extinction.

VETVILLE

An unique situation arises among a certain minority of Notre Dame students. This particular faction comprise what is tabbed "Mr. and Mrs. Vetville." A group of married couples living in their own separate community, Vetville is governed by its own mayor and city council. Living almost in a world of their own, aside from classes and jobs, they have a social life quite distinct from that of the ordinary student. It consists of Saturday night dances, Dad's poker and Mom's bridge parties and a mixed bowling league. Their high spot of the year is the semi-annual graduation exercises for wives of graduating seniors. The perennial baby-sitter problem is easily solved with willing students from the nearby freshmen halls. Yes, the vets have all this and ice-box privileges, too.

UNIVERSITY OF NOTRE DAME

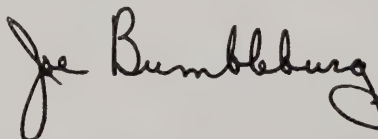

The Dome
Yearbook
Notre Dame, Indiana

May 1958

The production of a yearbook is dependent on many people. Without the staff, the suppliers and the others it would be impossible for such a book to become a reality. I am indeed grateful for the aid given me by Mr. John Defant, Director of the University Press, and the staff of his office; Mr. Jack Bundy and The S. K. Smith Company; Mr. Robert Lehman and Indiana Engraving Company; Rand-McNally of Hammond, Indiana; Delma Studios of New York City; and Haywood Publishing Company of Lafayette, Indiana. Also, and not least, I would like to thank my staff for the work and patience that they have displayed during the past year.

It has been an honor to serve the University community as Editor of the DOME. I can only hope that in fulfilling this task I have given readers a true picture of the University of Notre Dame.

Sincerely in Notre Dame,

A handwritten signature in cursive script that reads "Joe Bumbleburg". The signature is written in dark ink and is positioned above the printed name and title.
